Introduction to Public International Law
Course IR 445 / PO 243 • Fall 2018

1. Course Overview
The course aims to present a panorama of public international law, which covers principles and rules that govern the relations between States and the latter's interactions with other international actors. It is designed to give students a global understanding of these principles and rules governing international relations and, ultimately, provide them with practical skills in legal reasoning and arguing, research and writing on international issues.

The course will start with an introduction to the international legal order, including a presentation of the specificities of international law as compared to domestic law. It will then focus on core areas of public international law, which involve the following questions. Who are the actors in the international legal system and to whom does international law apply? How is international law created and where to find it? What are the fundamental principles of public international law, besides the multitude of international rules, with a special focus on one of them, namely the prohibition of the use of force? Finally, in case of breaches of international rules, how does international law react to such breaches?

2. Methodology and textbooks
The course is taught through lectures and in-class discussions, with an extensive reliance on primary materials (treaties, resolutions, official declarations, and decisions of international courts). The relevant materials are indicated for each topic in the course syllabus and compiled in a reading-brick. Students are required to read them carefully before coming to class. Additional readings are also suggested for students who wish to go further on topics of particular interest (see the course Blackboard Learn page: learn.bu.edu).

The main textbook used for the course is Malcolm EVANS (ed.), International Law, Oxford University Press, 5th ed., 2018 (hereafter EVANS, available at the Muzy Students’ house). Other reference books are Peter MALANCZUK, Akehurst’s Modern Introduction to International Law, London/New York: Routledge (AKEHURST’S), and Antonio CASSESE, International Law, Oxford University Press(CASSESE), all available at the University of Geneva Library to which BU Geneva students have full access.

Students may also consult www.ici-cij.org to access full texts of the judgments and advisory opinions of the International Court of Justice, www.un.org/documents for any official documents of the United Nations, and other useful websites listed in Blackboard Learn.

3. Assignments and grading criteria
Assignments for the course, and the objectives of each of them, will be explained in greater detail on the first day of class.

The assignments are composed of three written works and on attendance, as follows:
   a) Case analysis presentation (20%): 15 minutes presentation of the case, followed by 30 minutes class discussion.
   b) Case analysis paper (25%): a written task singling out the legal precedents of a case law. Further explanation on these case analysis assignments are posted at Learn Blackboard and will be given during the first class.
   c) 3-hour final exam, composed of a dissertation and a situation analysis: 45%, Thursday October 4, 2-5 pm
   d) Active participation: 10% of grade (criteria for an A-level participation are posted at Learn Blackboard).

The final grade, from A to F, is the total percentage of the assignments, with the following equivalence:
