General Information

Course Overview

The purpose of this module is to examine the history, development, structure and efficacy of international human rights law. In this module, students will investigate the legal framework of the United Nations and regional systems relating to the protection and promotion of, inter alia, the rights of minorities and indigenous peoples, women's rights, the rights of migrants and refugees, cultural rights, and the emerging field of environmental rights. Students will assess the remedies that exist for violations of human rights law in the various systems and examine practical case studies where relevant. This module provides a platform through which students can explore international human rights norms thematically. Reference will be made throughout the course to the Irish context.

Learning Outcomes

On completion of the course the students will be able to:

- Compare the international human rights law system and regional human rights law systems;
- Evaluate the various mechanisms and procedures for human rights law enforcement;
- Critically assess specific areas of international human rights law with reference to relevant legal instruments and contemporary cases;
- Draft a legal document in the form of a submission, reasoned opinion, declaration or resolution concerning a specific area of human rights.

- Acquire basic competency in legal writing and research.

Teaching Methodology

Class time will be used for a combination of lectures, discussions, and group exercises. Participation is very important in this module. Students will be asked to explain readings and concepts, to offer analysis of cases and to express their opinion.

Assignments and Grading

Further details on the assignments will be distributed during lectures and discussed. Opportunities for questions about the assignments will be given during the course. Your grade for the course will be based on your work as follows:

Attendance & Participation:	20%
Presentation:	15%
Essay assignment:	35%
Final Examination:	30%

The presentation will be given during one of the lectures. The presentation should last 15 minutes.

Assignment details are distributed at the end of week five. The essay should be approximately 2,000 words long. Essay requirements will be distributed with the essay titles.

For the exam you are required to comprehensively answer two questions – excluding the specific topic addressed in your essay.

Detailed Schedule:

Class	Topic/Preliminary Reading	Description
1	Human Rights, Historical Context, Development, and Institutions Smith: Chapter 2 (Pages: 5-25)	This class will focus on the inception and promulgation of human rights. This topic will examine the development of international human rights regimes prior to, and after, World War II. It will also trace the ideologies of national sovereignty and the burgeoning notion of an international community, commencing with the League of Nations, through the experiences of World War II, and onwards to the creation of the United Nations. Finally, it will examine rival philosophical bases for the derivation of rights: universality versus cultural relativity.
2	The United Nations Treaties and Institutions; Overview of Select Regional Systems Smith: Chapter 3 (Pages 26-36) Chapter 4 (Pages 37-51)	This topic will examine the United Nations Charter and its role in governing international relations. It will also examine key international legal instruments which have issued from the UN and its various branches. Particular attention will be given to “dualist” nations such as Ireland and the difficulty of enforcing human rights in this circumstance. We will also review the UN institutions and their impact on the protection of human rights. Of note among these institutions are the Security Council, the International Court of Justice, and the International Criminal Court. To conclude, we will examine regional legal regimes for the protection and promotion of human rights.

3	The Right to Life Smith: Chapter 13 (Pages: 217-234)	Field Trip: Kilmainham Gaol This topic will examine the central and paramount human right: the right to life. We will consider what obligations—be they positive or negative—the right to life may impose upon the state. We will examine with particular care the death penalty and the “right to die”.
4	The Right to be Free from Torture, Inhuman, and Degrading Treatment Smith: Chapter 14 (Pages: 217-235)	Field Trip: Criminal Courts of Justice This section will examine the seemingly universally agreed prohibition of torture. We will also discuss whether or in what circumstances torture can ever be morally permissible in certain emergency circumstances (e.g., to protect innocent life from imminent threat).
5	Social and Economic Rights Readings will be posted on The Loop	During this topic, we will distinguish social and economic rights from civil and political rights, with reference to different regional and domestic systems, and the levels of protection afforded to these categories of rights.
6	Freedom of Expression/Minority Rights Smith Chapters 18 & 21	For this section, we will examine, in the first instance, international, regional and domestic regimes protecting the liberty of expression. Conversely, we will also examine how the definition of protected/unprotected speech and expression can vary according to jurisdiction. In the second instance, we will critically examine specific protections in law for cultural, linguistic and other minorities.
7	No Class	Mid-Semester Break
8	The Human Right to Health and Guest Lecture on the Human Right to Health and the operation of Criminal Law as an adjunct or impediment to its realization Readings will be posted on The Loop	During this topic, we will examine the human right to health in international law and the positive obligations upon states, in view of respecting, protecting and fulfilling this right. The guest lecture will speak about the desirability, vel non , of criminalizing the transmission of HIV with deference to the dignity and rights of those living with HIV; in addition, the guest will
