

The African Studies Center at Boston University Presents: TEACHING AFRICA TEACHER CERTIFICATION PROGRAM

The Outreach Program at Boston University's African Studies Center has created a new Teacher Certification Program as part of our longstanding commitment to promote the teaching of Africa and the African diaspora in U.S. schools.

Students accepted into the program will complete a minimum of 16 credits in university-level coursework and teaching workshops. Courses may be taken at any accredited university but must have a primary focus on Africa, including one class with a predominantly historical perspective. Teaching workshops will be sponsored by the African Studies Center and taught on the Boston University campus.

Application Requirements:

All applicants must submit the following: official transcripts from the highest degree conferred; a personal statement (1000 word limit); resume; English proficiency exam results, if necessary.

Official transcripts must be mailed directly to the ASC Outreach Program.

All other application materials should be submitted to bmellio@bu.edu.
