ITEMS PROPOSED FOR REVISION (check all that apply):

- [ ] Course Number
- [X] Title
- [X] Short Title
- [ ] Credits
- [ ] Cross-listing
- [ ] 40 Word Description
- [ ] Prerequisites
- [ ] Divisional Studies Credit
- [ ] Other (Explain)

Notes: The "short title" appears in the course inventory and on student transcripts and must be 15 characters maximum including spaces. The "40 word description" appears in the CAS/GRS Bulletin.

PROPOSED REVISIONS: For each item checked above, provide the current information, then the proposed information, then a brief explanation for the proposed change, including the intended impact of the change.
1. Title
   a. Current information: A History of Women in the United States
   b. Proposed information: Women and Gender in US History
   c. Explanation & impact
      The new title is a more accurate reflection of what is covered in this class: not simply a discussion of women, but a broader consideration of gender relations and gender ideologies.

2. Short Title
   a. Current information: His Women in US
   b. Proposed information: Wom&Dgr in US

IMPACT ON OTHER DEPARTMENTS/PROGRAMS: Will any of these changes have an impact on students pursuing the degree requirements or expectations of other departments, programs, or schools? Check one: □ Yes x No

If YES, please identify impacts and attach cognate comment from the appropriate department/ program/ school.

RESOURCE NEEDS: STAFFING, FACILITIES, AND EQUIPMENT: As a result of the proposed changes, will there be any changes in the staffing, special facilities or equipment needs of the course (e.g. laboratory, library, instructional technology, technical resources, etc)? Check one: □ Yes x No

If YES, explain further and indicate whether currently available staffing, facilities, and equipment are adequate for the proposed course. (NOTE: Approval of proposed revisions does not imply a change in resource commitments on the part of CAS.)

FURTHER INFORMATION THAT MUST BE SUBMITTED IN ORDER FOR THIS PROPOSAL TO BE CONSIDERED:

1. A complete week-by-week SYLLABUS with student learning objectives, readings, and assignments that reflects the proposed changes (see guidelines on "Writing a Syllabus" on the Center for Teaching & Learning website. Be sure that syllabus includes your expectations for academic honesty, with URL for pertinent undergraduate or GRS academic conduct code(s).

2. Cognate comment from chairs or directors of relevant departments and/or programs. Use the form available here. You can consult with Joseph Bizup (CAS) or Jeffrey Hughes (GRS) to determine which departments or programs inside and outside of CAS would be appropriate.

Women, it seems, are more publicly visible than they ever have been. They now routinely occupy places we used to think were only for men: as Supreme Court justices, corporate executives, ghostbusters, and, of course, presidential candidates. By the time our course is over, we might see a woman, for the first time in US history, on track to be the next president of the United States.

This course seeks to explore what has, and has not, changed for American women by looking historically at the ideas and experiences of women in the United States, from the 1600s through the end of the twentieth century. Our goal will be to understand not just what women have done but also how many fundamental moments and issues in US history – including the formation of the early republic, religious revival movements, reform crusades, slavery, war and race relations – have hinged on certain notions of gender.

Studying women’s history also means being aware of the way women have been divided by class, race, ethnicity, and more, and that while the voices of white, elite women tend to predominate, the experiences of less privileged women and women of color have also had significant effects on shaping the American past.

Course readings will include essays and documents drawn from an assigned reader (Women's America), some primary texts, and a recommended textbook. Assigned readings will be discussed at numerous junctures throughout the semester.

COURSE REQUIREMENTS:

There will be one in-class midterm (worth 30% of the final grade) and one final exam to be given during the final examination period (30%). There will also be two 4-5 page papers. The first will ask you to consider a combination of scholarly and primary source material found in the Women's America collection. The second will ask you to explore the current presidential campaign as a historian. You should start, as soon as possible, by simply observing the way certain themes from the past are resonating in the current political scene or how new attitudes about gender, different from what we’ve seen before, are taking shape in this moment. To aid you in the project, I have created a folder in the “Documents” section of the course website labeled “The 2016 Presidential Campaign” and have already added some material. Please take note of stories that you come across in the news and feel free to pass these onto me. I will keep our campaign folder updated with your submissions and with new materials I find as well. More detailed instructions on these papers will be forthcoming (each worth 20% of the grade; see syllabus for due dates).

It will be possible to submit papers electronically, but you must be sure to follow these instructions: you must compose and submit your paper as a WORD document and you must submit the paper, by the due date and time, to both the blackboard site and to my email address. All correspondence regarding these papers must be done using your BU email address. It is also your responsibility to check your BU email after submitting your paper to make sure there has been no problem with the submission of your paper. Late papers will be reduced by a partial grade (i.e., a B+ to a B) for each late day.

ACADEMIC CONDUCT: Cheating – plagiarism included – is absolutely forbidden. Plagiarism means presenting somebody else’s work as if it is your own, even if you do so unintentionally. It is the responsibility of all students to know and understand the BU Academic Conduct Code that deals with plagiarism and other forms of academic misconduct. This code is posted at: http://www.bu.edu/academics/resources/academic-conduct-code/
POLICY ON TECHNOLOGY: Studies show that students do not benefit from multi-tasking and that some students' tendency to shop or face-book during class time can be a distraction for everyone. Evidence also suggests that students really don’t learn better by taking notes on electronic devices. So, unless there is a demonstrated need, laptops, cell phones, and other electronic devices are NOT PERMITTED in class. The only exception to this rule will be when students must access a reading assignment from the web or from Blackboard that is being discussed in class.

ATTENDANCE POLICY: Students are allowed a TOTAL OF TWO UNEXCUSED ABSENCES. More than two absences will require a conversation with the instructor. A student with more than three absences will need to do extra work. More than four absences will result in a significant reduction of the final grade.

This course counts towards the Women's, Gender, and Sexuality Studies minor. You can learn more about the program and the minor at their website: http://www.bu.edu/wgs/

READINGS:

The books below are available in the bookstore. Whenever possible, it’s best to have a hard copy of the reading material so that you can mark passages and write notes in the margins. If it doesn’t break the bank, try to print out at least some of the shorter reading assignments that are posted on Blackboard or are on the web.

BOOKS:

Linda Kerber and Jane De Hart, eds., Women's America: Refocusing the Past (8th edition; Oxford University Press) (Indicated as WA on the syllabus.)
Please note that the bookstore has ordered the 8th edition of this book and the page numbers on the syllabus correspond to that edition; however, if you can find an earlier and cheaper edition – 6th or 7th – you could work with that and then make adjustments on the pages. There will be some essays that only appear in the 8th edition (those marked with ) so if you end up with an earlier edition, you should also get to know someone in the class who has the 8th edition so you can copy the relevant essays.

Harriet Jacobs, Incidents in the Life of a Slave Girl (Penguin/Random House edition)
Louisa May Alcott, Hospital Sketches (Applewood Books edition)
Anzia Yezierska, Bread Givers (Perseca Books edition)
Charlotte Perkins Gilman, Herland (Dover edition)

Recommended text: Sara Evans, Born for Liberty: A History of Women in America (Simon & Schuster edition)

From time to time, I will also post additional documents, illustrations, and external links that we will consider in class. To access the course website, go to:
https://learn.bu.edu/webapps/blackboard/execute/modulepage/view?course_id=33992_1&cmp_tab_id=98439_1&editMode=true&mode=cpview

You can also find copies of the syllabus, the on-line version of reading materials, study guides for the midterm and final (when available), and instructions for the short papers (when available) at the course website.
