John Song

Modern Chinese Christianity and the Making of a New Man

Daryl R. Ireland

“This engaging volume offers a new evaluation of revivalist Christianity in twentieth-century China through a biography of its inimitable exemplar, John Sung (Song Shangjie). Ireland’s authoritative study draws on previously unavailable resources to offer a balanced-yet-intriguing portrait of a complex figure of modern evangelism. Through a range of lenses from gender to somatic forces in the body politic and faith healings, Sung’s methods, itinerations, and theology are set against broader trends in the social history of Christianity in China and Southeast Asia.”

~Chloe Starr, Professor of Asian Christianity and Theology, Yale Divinity School
