

CAS Concentration Information Sheet

Department of Mass Communication, Advertising, and Public Relations

and

Department of Film and Television

- Three (3) courses in the same CAS department.*
- Each course must be junior (300) level or higher, except:
  - 200 level or higher foreign language courses (not 200-level literature and civilization courses) will count (e.g. LS211, 212, and 303 will fulfill a concentration).**
  - One (and only one) 100 or 200 level course will count as long as it is a prerequisite for one of the other two 300-level courses in the concentration.
  - Any other exceptions, such as having three thematically related courses in different departments count, must be petitioned through your faculty advisor.
- A CAS minor will take the place of a concentration only if it meets the above requirements.
- The courses counting toward the concentration cannot also count for the freshman/sophomore liberal arts requirements.

Department of Journalism

- Five (5) courses 300-level or above in the same CAS department*, except:
  - Two 300-level or above courses in a related department may count via petition (e.g. PO courses counting for an HI concentration).
  - 200 level or higher foreign language courses (not 200-level literature and civilization courses) will count (e.g. LS211, 212, and 3 other 300-level or above classes in the same language will fulfill a concentration).**
  - Any other exceptions, such as having three thematically related courses in different departments count, must be petitioned through your faculty advisor.
- A CAS minor will automatically fulfill the concentration requirements as long as at least five of the minor classes are not also counted as liberal arts requirements.
- The courses counting toward the concentration cannot also count for the freshman/sophomore liberal arts requirements.

Notes

* The course prefix must be the same for the courses within the department, e.g., third semester Spanish, third semester French, and third semester Italian will not fulfill a concentration even though they are all offered through the Department of Romance Studies.

** For students who have placed out of the liberal arts foreign language requirement or have otherwise fulfilled it (this includes CGS-to-COM students) may start a new language track and have the first and second semesters (e.g. LS111 and LS112) count toward the concentration in addition to what is stated above. This is only for students who have the language requirement fulfilled and are starting a new language.
