

The Center for the Study of Europe at Boston University presents:

European Studies Lunch Talk
The Challenge of Democratic Representation in the EU

European Elections

IT'S YOUR CHOICE!

Join us for a lecture by Pieter de Wilde, Senior Researcher in the Department of Global Governance at the Berlin Social Science Center (WZB), Germany. At WZB, he is involved in an interdisciplinary research project entitled "The Political Sociology of Cosmopolitanism and Communitarianism," which analyses the emergence of a cleavage within Western societies as a result of globalization. De Wilde is currently visiting researcher at Harvard's Center for European Studies where he is studying the implications of this conflict over globalization-related issues for representative democracy.

Lunch available at 12:30. Open to BU community and others with a research interest in the topic. RSVP to edamrien@bu.edu
