Join us for a reading and conversation with Greek writer Christos Ikononou and translator Karen Emmerich.

Christos Ikononou was born in Athens in 1970. He writes with profound sensibility, deep humanism and astute foresight about the human condition using the Greek economic crisis as a backdrop. He will read from his short story collection, Something Will Happen, You'll See (Polis Editions, 2010)—a wrenching yet optimistic elegy to Greece's working classes. The collection was the most reviewed Greek book of 2010. It has been translated into six languages and is being published in the U.S by Archipelago in March, 2016.

Karen Emmerich's translations from the Greek include books by Margarita Karapanou, Amanda Michalopoulou, Sophia Nikolaidou, Ersi Sotiropoulos, and Vassilis Vassilikos. She teaches at Princeton University.

Supported in part by a Getting to Know Europe grant from the European Commission Delegation in Washington, DC.
