SPRING 2019 SEMINAR SERIES

Evergreen lectures provide an excellent opportunity to hear BU faculty and noted experts share their interests, expertise, and research on a wide variety of subjects. If you plan to attend, please register at least a day in advance of the first session, and use the enclosed Registration Form or visit to register online bu.edu/evergreen/seminars.

The History of America in Three Meals, with Megan Elias

Thursdays March 21, 28 & April 4 10:30 a.m.-12 p.m.
GSU Conference Auditorium 775 Commonwealth Ave., 2nd Floor

If we are what we eat, then our history must be what we have eaten. Food history is a fascinating way to get a new perspective on the collective past and helps illuminate connections between the local and the global. Join historian and director of Boston University’s Gastronomy program, Megan J. Elias, for a three-part series that explores the history of the United States—in all its culinary diversity—through three historically important meals. (Please note that food will be discussed, not served.) $40
Booming Boston: How the Metropolitan Area Has Developed, with James O’Connell

Wednesdays April 3, 10 & 24
10:30 a.m.-12 p.m.
GSU Conference Auditorium
775 Commonwealth Ave., 2nd Floor

In recent years, Boston has experienced an unprecedented structural boom. Examine how Boston has evolved from a declining post-World War II city plagued by urban decay and suburban flight into one of the world’s foremost centers for technological innovation through this series of illustrated presentations by urban planner Jim O’Connell, who teaches in the City Planning & Urban Affairs program at Boston University and has authored six books and many articles on planning and urban history. $40

Best Short Stories, with Taline Voskeritchian

Wednesdays, March 27, April 3, 10, 24 & May 1
1-2:20 p.m.
Department of Psychological and Brain Sciences, PSY B33
64-86 Cummington Mall

Taline Voskeritchian, lecturer in BU’s College of Communication and longtime contributor to the Evergreen Seminar Series, discusses work from Best American Short Stories 2018, edited by Roxane Gay. In preparation for the first class, students are asked to purchase their own copy of the collection and to read “The Baptism,” by Don Rash and “The Art of Losing,” by Yoon Choi. $60

AUDITING A COURSE

Boston University offers hundreds of courses on fascinating topics, taught by world-renowned scholars—and any person 58 or older may register to audit BU classes, becoming part of a rich exchange of knowledge.

For auditing fees, consult the enclosed Registration Form or visit bu.edu/evergreen/auditing. Evergreen students are responsible for any course related fees, such as applied music, technology, or lab fees, etc.

The last day to add classes is February 4, 2014.

Step-by-step auditing instructions:

1. Choose a course. Visit bu.edu/reg and select “Registration,” then “Class Schedule.”

2. Complete the enclosed Auditing Registration Form. Failure to complete fully can cause delays in processing.

3. Attend the first class to see if seats are available and obtain the instructor’s signature (required). Acceptance is at the discretion of the instructor.*

4. Submit the signed registration and conduct forms, with payment, to the Evergreen office’s new location (1010 Commonwealth Avenue, 1st Floor) during the Spring 2019 registration period: Weekdays, January 22–February 4, 10 a.m.–3 p.m.

Please note: No forms will be accepted after the registration period.

* Auditors are not accepted in courses offered through: CPE, ENG, GMS, KHC, LAW, MED, PDP, SDM; any creative writing courses; any Food & Wine courses; any non-credit certificate courses; any online courses; any film production courses.
Starting in 2019, the Boston University Evergreen offices will move to a new location at 1010 Commonwealth Avenue, 1st Floor. When you’re ready to continue your lifelong adventure of learning, find us there, and we will be sure to help you register for seminars and courses and answer any questions.
