School nurses have to deal with more than bumps and bruises. Which is why experts at Boston University’s Medical Campus are preparing them for anything—from substance abuse and psychosocial issues to life-threatening emergencies. Since 2016, BU’s School Health Institute for Education and Leadership Development (SHIELD) has trained more than 6,000 school nurses who work in neighborhoods like Roxbury, Dorchester, and Mattapan, Mass. This training is possible thanks to Boston University’s partnership with the Massachusetts Department of Public Health, and it’ll help officials like you ensure that students are getting the best care possible.

To learn more about how Boston University is helping your community, please visit bu.edu/federal.