Great Wall of Money: The Politics of China's International Monetary Relations

Jonathan Kirshner

Professor of Political Science and IR,
Boston College

Jonathan Kirshner is Professor of Political Science and International Studies. His research and teaching interests focus on international relations, political economy (especially macroeconomics and money), and politics and film. His current research includes projects on classical realism, the international political implications of the financial crisis and its aftermath, and the politics of mid-century cinema.

Prior to joining Boston College, Kirshner was the Stephen and Barbara Friedman Professor of International Political Economy in the Department of Government at Cornell University. At Cornell, he also served as director of the Reppy Institute for Peace and Conflict Studies from 2007 to 2015, and was the recipient of the Provost's Award for Distinguished Scholarship and the Stephen and Margery Russell Distinguished Teaching Award.
