THOMAS HANNO KABULASOKE, UGANDA

I served as an education volunteer at Kabulasoke Primary Teachers College and Iceme Girls Secondary School in Uganda. I started as a science teacher, but by the end of my service I had taught computer skills, math, sex ed, phys ed, and English. I also helped start and coach the first soccer team at Iceme Girls SS, which made it to the national tournament in its first year.

Living and working abroad through the Peace Corps is an incredible opportunity to start to know another country and some of its people. My experience in Uganda helped solidify my motivation to pursue a career change from engineering to education, and after teaching for a few years in Boston, I am now pursuing a Master's in Mathematics and Teaching from BU.
