Course Description:
Over the course of the twentieth century, Britain abandoned her empire and ceded political, economic and military control to the United States. But Britain also demonstrated strong leadership in the World Wars, pioneered an innovative Welfare State, and evolved into a vibrant (even if at times highly fraught) multicultural society. To what extent, then, should modern British history be regarded as a story of decline? In answering this question, this lecture course will give particular consideration to the tensions already present in Britain during the late Victorian and Edwardian periods (involving the rights of workers and women, the burdens of empire, and the Irish question), and the ways in which these tensions sowed the seeds for twentieth- and twenty-first-century developments.

Emphasis throughout will be on close reading of primary and secondary sources, as well as on careful analysis of visual images and historical films. Assignments will include weekly discussion board postings, an analytical essay (5-7 pages), a mid-term and a final.

Course Texts (required):
- Thomas Heyck, The Peoples of the British Isles from 1870 to the present
- Walter Arnstein, The Past Speaks
- M.K. Gandhi, Hind Swaraj
- Vera Brittain, Testament of Youth
- Virginia Woolf, Mrs. Dalloway
- George Orwell, The Road to Wigan Pier
- John Lukacs, Five Days in London
- Hanif Kureishi, The Buddha of Suburbia
In addition to the above texts, a number of readings will be available through the web and through Blackboard.

Course Requirements:
- Attendance. Course attendance is required. (See below for specifics regarding attendance policy.)
- Class Participation. Every Thursday, we will devote some of our class time to discussion of the course materials. It is essential that you come to class on Thursdays ready to discuss the assigned readings. To help prepare you for this, I will be requiring you to post comments on a discussion board located on Blackboard. On designated weeks, you must post at least one substantive comment in response to the week’s readings. I will read these comments carefully, and the successful completion of these responses will factor into your class participation grade.
- Exams. You will be assigned a mid-term and final exam. The exams will consist of identifications and short essays. Review sheets will be distributed in advance.
- Writing Assignments. You will be assigned 1 major essay (5-7 pp. in length), designed to help you develop your writing skills and think critically about the course materials. The assignment will be distributed in class well in advance of the due date. I will be available to read drafts, provided they are submitted to me in a timely fashion.

Grading Breakdown:
Class participation, weekly writing responses, and attendance: 20%
- Paper (5-7 pages): 25%
- Mid-Term Exam: 25%
- Final Exam: 30%

Major Deadlines:
- February 23: Mid-Term Exam
- April 5: Paper Due
- TBA: Final Exam

Late Assignments:
Please contact me well in advance of an assignment’s due date if you think that you will have difficulty meeting a particular deadline. All papers submitted late without my permission will automatically be marked down one half grade per day.

Attendance Policy:
Class attendance is required. Please notify me in advance (if possible) if you know that you will need to be absent from class. After two unexcused absences, I will begin deducting 1/3 of a letter grade off your final grade for every missed class.

Plagiarism Policy:
This course is designed to encourage critical thinking and writing. In order to become critical thinkers and writers, you must complete all stages of the work yourself: taking the words of others, or presenting the ideas of others as your own not only prohibits you from learning the skills of academic research, it also is a violation of Boston University’s academic conduct code. The minimum penalty for such offenses is to fail the assignment; the more common penalty is to fail the course.

If you have a disability registered with Disability Support Services or some other special circumstance that might affect your work this semester, please let me know both verbally and in writing as soon as possible, so I can make appropriate accommodations.
