COURSE DESCRIPTION

This course surveys basic themes in world history from the origins of humanity until about the year 1500 A.D. Rather than attempting to cover all of world history in one semester we will focus on general themes, processes, trends and relationships in areas such as politics, economics, social life, and religion. Much of the material will be presented through the reading of primary historical sources, and the discussion of the textbook's narrative and secondary scholarship on specific themes.

Major themes include:

1. The rise of complex societies in Egypt, Mesopotamia, India, East Asia, Central Asia, Africa, Europe, and the Americas;
2. The role of environmental and technological change in human history;
3. The role of imperial states in the ancient world;
4. The development of major world religions;
5. The establishment of trade routes and other forms of contact between the main complex societies.

REQUIRED WEEKLY READINGS are posted on Blackboard (Sources and other materials).

NB: Occasional EXTRA required readings (also posted on the website) will be announced in class and by email as appropriate.

REQUIRED BOOKS:

- Textbook (abbreviated as World): Felipe Fernández-Armesto, The World. A History, Vol. 1 (to 1500, chaps. 1-15). Pearson - Prentice Hall, Third Edition, 2016 (any other older edition is fine as well; available from Pearson or on Amazon and other online vendors as used).
- Writing Guide: Mary Lynn Rampolla, A Pocket Guide to Writing in History. 8th edition. Boston: Bedford - St. Martin's, 2015 (any older edition is fine; available from online vendors for a few dollars).

REQUIREMENTS AND GRADING

The course will be conducted through lectures, discussion in class, films, and the completion of a group project. Requirements for the course include, besides assigned readings:

Midterm exam: 15%

Written assignments, maps and quizzes: 40%

Group activity: 10%

Final exam: 20%

Attendance (5%) & participation (10%): 15%
