

ASTROPHYSICS
SEMINAR SERIES

Josh Shiode

AAS

“Tales of an Astrophysicist in Washington, DC”

Monday, April 28, 2014

Refreshments at 3:15pm in CAS 500

Talk begins at 3:30pm in CAS 502

Abstract:

Each year, more than 200 science PhDs, most recently minted, descend on Washington, DC through a variety of fellowship opportunities in science policy. After finishing my degree at Berkeley last year, I joined that group as the John Bahcall Public Policy Fellow for the American Astronomical Society. In this talk, I'll discuss my perspectives on transitioning from science to science policy, what I do now as a policy fellow, and how you can make science advocacy a part of your career no matter where you are.