Course Description

This course examines the workings of diplomacy and the application of statecraft in international relations. The course will take a case study approach, examining different strategies, tactics, and problems in the conduct of foreign policy. The case studies will be based on historical events and the course will be organized chronologically.

Objectives

The objectives of this course are to impart an understanding of the mechanisms and process of diplomacy, to assess the utility of different approaches to the implementation of foreign policy, to analyze the success and failure of these approaches in different circumstances, and to consider the wider issues in their application to statecraft.

Requirements

Mid-term examination	25%
Writing Assignment	25%
Comprehensive final examination	50%

Key Dates:

Mid-term examination:	20 Mar.
Writing Assignment, last date for approval of topic:	1 Apr.
Writing Assignment Due:	24 Apr. (no later the 6:00 p.m.)
Comprehensive final examination	as posted by registrar.

The Writing Assignment:

A research paper (10-15 pages) on a topic supportive of course objectives.

Writing proposal and final manuscript will be submitted no later than the beginning of class on the dates indicated.

Late turn-in of assignments, without prior written permission will be penalized with a failing grade. There will be no opportunity for work for extra credit. Make-up examinations will be administered only for excused absence.

Cell phones are to be turned off. Repeated disruption caused by phones ringing will result in a grade penalty to be determined by the instructor.

All class members are expected to maintain high standards of academic honesty and integrity. The College of Arts and Sciences' pamphlet "Academic Conduct Code" provides the standards and procedures
