

LAW LIBRARY ACCESS FORM

Monday, April 23, 2012 through Friday, May 11, 2012

To maximize study space and maintain a quiet atmosphere during examination periods, law library access is limited to Boston University law students and other Boston University researchers who require our legal collections.

Non-law BU students may use the Law Library's study space only when actively using law materials to complete a specific, required assignment for a class in which the student is currently enrolled.

Non-Law B.U. students who meet the above criteria can check out a registered user pass by presenting their B.U. ID at the Pappas or Annex Circulation desk. The pass should be prominently displayed while you are studying in the library and should be returned when you have completed your research each day.
