Phonetics and Phonology: Introduction to Sound Systems

Charles Chang (http://ling.bu.edu/people/chang)

Introduction to the nature and patterning of sounds in human language, incorporating theory & hands-on development of practical skills. Topics include:

• production, perception, physiological and acoustic description, and transcription of the speech sounds used in languages of the world
• cross-language typology
• International Phonetic Alphabet
• acoustic theory of speech production
• theories of speech perception
• digital speech analysis
• basic phonological analysis

Prerequisites: CAS LX 250

Carries CAS Humanities Division credit.

TR 11:00–12:30
Fall 2016*

*WILL NOT BE OFFERED SPRING 2017