are pleased to present

Calligraphy in Chinese Society

a lecture by

Professor Qianshen Bai

Boston University Department of Art History

The lecture will explore the roles played by calligraphy in Chinese society, including both religious and secular uses. The linguistic foundation and aesthetic of calligraphy will also be discussed. Following the lecture, there will be a demonstration of Chinese calligraphy.

Wednesday, February 11, 2009, 5:30pm

BU College of Arts and Sciences, room 211

725 Commonwealth Avenue

The lecture will be followed by a light reception. This event is free and open to the public.
