

WHAT: A 2-day conference where people living with paralysis talk with the scientists and clinicians working to help them recover, featuring:

- Presentations and small-group discussions with researchers on the cutting edge of neuroscience;
- Breakout session track dedicated to the latest innovations in recovery therapies;
- Networking activities to connect with your peers and accelerate progress.

WHO: Leaders who are revolutionizing the way we look at paralysis:

- Research scientists seeking discoveries that will lead to restored function, no matter how complex the neurological puzzles;
- Practitioners and therapists who believe in the potential to maximize recovery from spinal cord injury and other paralyzing conditions;
- Leading advocates in the paralysis community, dedicated to advancing research that will restore healthy bodies to all those living with a spinal cord injury.

WHY: Working 2 Walk is a unique opportunity making its first visit to Boston:

- Up-to-the-minute information on the latest news in regenerative medicine, clinical trials, and real-time therapies;
- Meet the scientists you've read about; ask them your questions. Share knowledge and strategies for accelerating progress toward cures for chronic spinal cord injury;
- Network with your peers in an exciting and dynamic environment, filled with hope and belief that we can achieve a cure for paralysis.

WHERE & WHEN:

Boston Convention & Exhibit Center
Boston MA, Sept 27-28, 2013

Here's what our attendees say about the Working 2 Walk Symposium experience:

"I thought the conference was incredible. I came away more motivated than I have been in years, and made some connections on the science side of things. I have been raving about it to anyone who will listen. I hope to be there next year, and I want to bring some people from my lab as well – they need to see this! I'm not sure I'm expressing this well but the point is that I'm fired up. It's me who should be thanking all of you, it put the wind in my sails."

Dr. Murray Blackmore, Speaker

"This is not just a conference, but truly a brilliant environment for fostering collaboration between scientists, clinicians and advocates from all corners of the world. I thank Unite 2 Fight Paralysis for giving me the chance to attend such an event and I look forward to Working 2 Walk 2013."
