Non-State Actors in International Relations: IR 333
Professor Kaija E. Schilde

IR 333 is a course about the role of non-state actors in international relations. International relations have generally been considered the domain of states. Non-state actors have had increasingly visible and prominent roles in global governance, international policy, and transnational activism that cross the boundaries of public and private and national and international. These non-state actors range from subnational or supranational governments, NGOs, religious groups, violent groups, for-profit security firms, to social movements and grassroots organizations. Their international or transnational roles come from a variety of sources, including the privatization of state authority and policymaking, the globalization of activism, and the transnational links between actors in domestic politics.

The first part of the course evaluates the history, definition, emergence, and distinctions between different non-state actors, as well as the theoretical literature on understanding transnational activism and private authority. It will also address the normative issues that have emerged from the growth of non-state actors in international politics. The second part of the course evaluates specifics of non-state actors in world politics, including their authority, power, and influence on politics or policies. The third part of the course surveys the different actors and groups we consider key non-state actors in world politics. The fourth part of the course reviews the role non-state actors have had in various issue and policy areas, such as environmental politics, human rights, development, and standards.

Requirements

Attendance, discussion, and course readings are all essential parts of your success in the course. The material covered in lectures does not duplicate what is assigned in the reading material.

Your course grade will be calculated based on:

1. Weekly REQUIRED readings of approximately 100-120 pages per week
2. Blackboard and clicker discussion (15% of grade)
3. Attendance and participation in class discussions (20% of the grade)
4. Non state actor team policy memo and presentation (20% of grade)
5. Midterm (20% of grade)
6. Final (25% of grade)

Clickers

Clickers will be used in this course to enhance engagement and increase interactivity. New and used clicker accounts are available at the BU Bookstore or at store.turningtechnologies.com The device used at BU is the TurningTechnologies ResponseWare/ResponseCard. Students MUST create a Turning Account, available at account.turningtechnologies.com BU is moving to cloud-based responseware in Fall 2014, so students do not have to purchase a ResponseWare device, but only have to download an app from the Android or Apple stores.

BU School code is: B6sC

Exams

Two exams (midterm and final) will be given covering assigned readings and lecture material. Make up exams will not be given without a dean's excuse in which case an oral make up will be administered. No exceptions to the policy will be made.

Attendance and Participation

Attendance is required for success in this course. There will be some lecture material and powerpoint slides, but the majority of the course material will be communicated in an interactive manner outside of the lecture material. Failure to attend class will also be reflected in the participation grade.

Participation credit is given based upon the degree to which a student contributes positively to discussion of material during question and answer and discussion sessions. Students who rarely, or never, speak in discussion will receive no participation credit.

A key element of your grade (15%) will also be based on submitting one discussion question or comment about the reading material to blackboard before 9 AM the day of the class. If there is no reading assigned for that day, no blackboard comment/question is necessary. Discussion questions will not be graded other than to note participation, unless the comment clearly indicates the student has not read the material, which will result in no participation point.

ADD/DROP

The College of Arts and Sciences (CAS) Dean's Office has requested that you be informed of the following: The last day you may drop the course without a W grade is Thursday, February 21, 2013. The last day you may drop the course with a W grade is Friday, March 29, 2013.

Academic Honesty

Without exception, students are expected to adhere to the Boston University CAS Academic Code. Please read the Boston University Academic Conduct Code. Accordingly, all instances of academic dishonesty will be reported to the CAS Academic Conduct Committee. Please see <http://www.bu.edu/cas/students/undergrad-resources/code/>

Readings

Readings are REQUIRED and do not reinforce or duplicate lecture or in-class material. There are about 20-40 pages of reading per class session, usually in the form of a book chapter or article. Supplemental readings are listed under recommended readings.

After completing the reading for the class, please log into blackboard and submit a question about the reading under the discussion board.

There are five books required for purchase. Many of the assigned readings are from this list of books. Used copies of some of the books are affordable and readily available from online sources such as Amazon.com or at the campus Barnes and Noble in Kenmore. Any assigned readings that are not from these books are available on the course Blackboard site or the link provided.
