One of the main methodological problems in writing about religion scientifically is to put aside at once the tone of the village atheist and that of the village preacher, as well as their more sophisticated equivalents, so that the social and psychological implications of particular religious beliefs [and organizations] can emerge in a clear and neutral light. And when that is done, overall questions about whether religion is “good” or “bad,” “functional” or “dysfunctional,” “ego-strengthening” or “anxiety-producing,” disappear like the chimeras that they are, and one is left with particular assessments, and diagnoses in particular cases.
– Clifford Geertz, 1973, The Interpretation of Cultures, 123.

Course Description: Despite the predictions of modernization theorists, the heartfelt longings of secularists, and the deliberate neglect of structural realists, religion has not withdrawn from the world’s political stage. To the contrary, religion continues to shape individual values, social organizations, state institutions, and international relations. This has led to a re-evaluation of long-standing research programs that were based on the assumption that religion would either decline or disappear altogether. Scholars of world politics are now struggling to articulate a vision for the role of religion in public life, in the policies of states, and in global politics. This course is part of that process.

Course Objectives: By drawing on readings from international relations (IR), comparative politics, history, and anthropology, this course will begin charting a path toward understanding the place of religion in contemporary world affairs. The outcome of this class will not be a new paradigm for IR, nor will it be a unified theory of the role of religion in politics. Rather, by the end of the course, students should possess:

• A historical understanding of the contingent nature of the Westphalian system and its ideational progeny: sovereignty, nation-states, realism, and liberal internationalism.
• A critical perspective on secularization theory.
• A descriptive understanding of select twentieth century religious-political movements.
• A set of causal hypotheses about the role of religious actors in democratization, social movements, political party formation and development, war, economic development, and psychology.

By the end of the course, students should have the vocabulary and knowledge to discuss the role of religious actors in world politics. This skill will be obtained through writing, critical thinking, and seminar discussions, and should be useful both inside and outside the classroom.
Course Requirements

Participation (20%): The course will be run as a seminar. This format requires students to attend regularly, read diligently, and participate actively in class discussions. Each week, come to class prepared with 1-2 discussion questions that pertain to the readings.

Presentation (1 x 10% = 10%): Each student will be assigned to a two-person group, which will be responsible for one 10-minute presentation on current political events regarding a religious organization of their choosing. Students will choose presentation dates in the first week of class. Presentation topics must be approved by the professor and be relevant to that week’s themes. A grading rubric is at the end of the syllabus.

Response Papers (3 x 5% = 15%): Student will write three short (2-3 pages, double-spaced, 1 inch margins) analytical response papers (RP) over the course of the semester. I will provide the paper prompts one week before they are due on 9/6, 10/24, 11/7, and an optional makeup paper on 12/5. A grading rubric is at the end of the syllabus.

Midterm Exam (15%): One 4-5 page take-home essay exam will be given at the end of class 10/3 and returned via email by 5pm on 10/5.

Final Exam (Undergraduate Students: 40%): The final exam is a take-home essay, 7-8 pages in length. The exam will be handed out at the end of class on 12/12 and must be returned via email by 5pm on 12/19. In lieu of a final exam, students may choose to write a 15-20 page research paper (see below)

Research Paper (Graduate Students: 5% + 35% = 40%): In lieu of a final exam, graduate students will write a 15-20 page research paper. Students must meet with me the week of Nov 7 to present an abstract and preliminary list of sources (5%). Papers are due via email by 5pm on 12/19.

Late Work: Late submission of assignments will incur an automatic full-grade deduction per day beginning with the assignment deadline. Make up examinations will be granted only in exceptional cases.

Special Needs: If you have any special needs or circumstances, such as a learning disability or health concern, please do not hesitate to speak with me and we can discuss suitable accommodations and assistance. If there is a religious holy day that will require your absence, please notify me no later than the first two weeks of class so that we can make arrangements for your absence. If a student misses class due to an unexcused absence, their absence may be reflected in their participation grade.

Academic Misconduct: Plagiarism and cheating will be punished in accordance with BU’s Academic Conduct Code: http://www.bu.edu/academics/resources/academic-conduct-code/
Electronic Communications in Class: Please close all email accounts, cell phones, instant messaging programs, homing pigeons, and any other communication devices for the duration of class. These are serious distractions to the instructor and your fellow students.

Required Texts: The following books are required for the class and may be purchased at the BU bookstore or online. They will also be placed on reserve at Mugar Memorial Library. Article and chapter-length readings can be accessed through the course Blackboard site.

Response Papers – Grading Rubric

5/5  Answers the prompt in a coherent manner. Makes creative links between the reading, authors and concepts. Goes beyond the assigned content to draw fresh insights and analysis. Demonstrates mastery of the material and engages in independent thinking. Avoids making claims unsupported by evidence and/or reasonable judgment, or making fallacious claims including equivocation. Writing is exceptionally lucid.

4.5/5  Answers the prompt in a coherent way. Makes links between the cases, concepts or authors. Demonstrates a solid understanding of the material and goes beyond simple regurgitation, even if all claims are not convincingly established. Avoids being vague, making claims unsupported by evidence and/or reasonable judgment. Writing is clear and concise.

4/5  Answers the prompt in a coherent way although lacks creativity and depth. Demonstrates more than cursory understanding of the material. Tends toward vagueness but does not make claims unsupported by evidence and/or reasonable judgment. Writing is good.

3.5/5  Answers the prompt. Provides examples of cases, concepts or authors but fails to effectively connect evidence to the prompt. Makes claims unsupported by evidence and/or reasonable judgment. Writing itself is acceptable but needs improvement.

3/5  Unclear answer to the prompt. Fails to lay out the answer with evidence from the cases concepts, and/or fails effectively connect evidence to the argument. Tends toward vagueness, makes claims unsupported by evidence and/or reasonable judgment. Writing itself is poor.

2.5 -  States an unclear claim. Fails to lay out the argument with evidence from the texts and fails to demonstrate knowledge of the material itself. Vague, makes claims unsupported by evidence and/or reasonable judgment. Writing itself is unacceptable or incoherent.

Presentations – Grading Rubric

Each student will be assigned to a two-person group, which will be responsible for one 10-minute presentation on current events regarding religion and politics. The aim of this assignment is two-fold: (1) to provide presenters with an opportunity to improve their oral presentation skills, and (2) to increase students’ understanding of various aspects of contemporary religious political movements. Presentation topics must be approved by the professor and be relevant to that week’s themes.

2 pt.  Clear and concise
2 pt.  Relevant to course material
2 pt.  Accurate based on scholarly sources
2 pt.  Well-organized
2 pt.  Engaging
10 pt.  Total
