

PERSPECTIVES ON THE FUTURE OF CITIZENSHIP IN THE MIDDLE EAST

Zahra Albarazi, Senior Researcher, Institute on Statelessness and Inclusion, PhD Researcher, Tilburg School of Law; Ms. Albarazi's work specialises on the nexus between statelessness and forced displacement, and the interlink between discrimination and statelessness. She holds an LLM in International Law from Leeds University.

Lillian Frost, Research Fellow, Middle East Initiative, PhD Candidate, George Washington University; Ms. Frost's research examines variations in the sets of rights and forms of citizenship statuses host states offer to protracted refugee groups, including shifts in formal laws and how these laws are enforced in practice.

Moderated by Fateh Azzam, independent consultant and researcher specialized in human rights; Mr. Azzam's background includes work for the Asfari Institute for Civil Society and Citizenship at the American University of Beirut, the UN High Commissioner for Human Rights, the American University in Cairo, the Ford Foundation, and Al-Haq.

FREDERICK S. PARDEE SCHOOL OF GLOBAL STUDIES
121 BAYSTATE ROAD, BOSTON MA
NOVEMBER 12TH, 1:00-2:30 PM

Sponsored by: The Boston Consortium for Arab Region Studies, Boston University's International Human Rights Clinic, and the Pardee School's Forced Migration Human Trafficking Initiative