

Andrew Chraplyvy, Bell Labs, Alcatel-Lucent

Andrew Chraplyvy received the B.A. degree in physics from Washington University in St. Louis, and the MS and PhD degrees in physics from Cornell University. He is Optical Technologies Research Vice President at Bell Labs, Alcatel-Lucent. Dr. Chraplyvy is a Bell Labs Fellow, a member of the National Academy of Engineering, a Marconi Fellow, a Fellow of the Optical Society of America, a Fellow of the IEEE, and was inducted into the NJ Inventors Hall of Fame.