

Annual Report on Program Student Learning Outcomes Assessment

Program: BA in Chinese Language & Literature

Program Contact and Title: Sunil Sharma, Chair, Department of Modern Languages & Comparative Literature

College/School Contact and Title: Susan Jackson, Associate Dean

Date: October 2013

1. List the learning outcomes for the program

Students graduating with a major in Chinese Language & Literature should be able to demonstrate:

1. Linguistic proficiency in speaking, reading, and writing Mandarin at a level (ACTFL intermediate-high) that will enable them to function in today's China.
2. Solid knowledge of China's literary, philosophical, and religious traditions as well as contemporary cinema, visual arts, and new media.
3. Understanding of Chinese literature from an East Asian and world literary perspective.
4. Critical thinking, communication, and writing skills within areas of content and cultural knowledge.
5. Familiarity with fundamental research skills for Chinese studies, including use of traditional and electronic sources.