1. List the learning outcomes for the program (if you are new to program assessment, you might want to begin with 3-5 primary outcomes):

The DMin degree program is designed to assist religious professionals to deepen their understanding of and commitment to ministry by providing a context in which to update and refine their theological knowledge, sharpen existing skills, and learn new ones. The aim is to help students bring together their experience with additional academic studies to create a fresh synthesis of theory and practice.

1. an advanced understanding of the nature and purposes of transformational religious leadership
2. enhanced competencies in contextual analysis and leadership skills
3. capacity for a robust embrace of and engagement with social diversity
4. the integration of knowledge, contextual analysis, and leadership skills into a theologically reflective vocational praxis
5. new knowledge about religious leadership in global contexts
