Boston University Department of Religion Presents its 17th Annual Lecture

Empathy, Freedom, Saying No: An Indian Perspective on Palestine

David Shulman
Renee Lang Professor of Humanistic Studies, The Hebrew University of Jerusalem

In the course of the last twelve years David Shulman has been active on the peace front in the south Hebron hills on the occupied West Bank. He has encountered raw forms of human wickedness as well as striking forms of empathic kindness. Dr. Shulman will use such first-hand experiences to probe the meaning of empathy in the light of ethical voices from Indian traditions, including those that have inspired Gandhian-style non-violent protest in Palestine.

Monday, March 4, 6pm
Terrace Lounge at the Boston University’s George Sherman Union
775 Commonwealth Ave. 2nd Floor
Reception to follow lecture

Free and open to the public • Handicapped accessible
For more information contact Wendy at 617.353.2635