

Lecturer, Department of Health Sciences

The Department of Health Sciences at Boston University's College of Health and Rehabilitation Sciences: Sargent College invites applications for one full time, non-tenure track faculty position at the lecturer level. Primary responsibilities include teaching, student internship oversight and student advising in the undergraduate major in Health Science. The Health Science undergraduate curriculum provides students with a strong background in the biological aspects of health, quantitative and qualitative research methods, and a broad perspective on global public health issues. The program interacts extensively with other disciplines across Boston University to offer an inter-disciplinary framework to its students.

Applicants should have a minimum of a Master of Public Health or equivalent with 3 years full time experience or a doctorate degree, PhD, ScD or Dr.PH, and expertise in one of the public health disciplines, including but not restricted to community health, maternal and child health, health policy, social development, epidemiology, environmental, international, as well as a commitment to teaching and further developing the undergraduate program in Health Science.

The College of Health and Rehabilitation Sciences: Sargent College offers undergraduate, masters, and doctoral programs in a wide range of health-related fields. The College is among the nation's leaders in funded research in the field of health and rehabilitation sciences. The environment is highly collaborative among a faculty body with intersecting research interests. The Boston area includes many highly regarded medical and educational institutions and offers numerous opportunities for collaborative and interdisciplinary activities.

Review of applications will commence upon receipt and will continue until the position is filled. Start date is September 1, 2014. Applicants should submit a letter of application, curriculum vitae, statement of relevant experience and the names and contact information of three references to:
