Tenure Track Assistant Professor in Global Health
Department of Health Sciences

Boston University College of Health and Rehabilitation Sciences: Sargent College invites applications for two full-time, tenure-track faculty positions at the Assistant Professor level in the Department of Health Sciences. Positions will start in fall 2018. We are looking for colleagues who will help us to continue building on the College's tradition of excellence.

Tenure-track faculty at Boston University are expected to teach, carry out independent research, and participate in service. Successful candidates will have a research program that has potential for ongoing support by external funding. Specialization within the field of global health is open, and areas of particular interest could include one or more of the following: climate, environment, and health; data science, involving the use of quantitative methods to analyze large datasets; health disparities; and/or vulnerable populations. Successful candidates will have a well-defined vision of their research goals and have demonstrated success with multi-disciplinary teams.

Qualifications include:

- Earned research doctoral degree (PhD, ScD or equivalent in any public health field, completed at the time of application)
- Post-doctoral experience (preferred)
- Clear potential for an externally funded research program
- Peer-reviewed journal publications
- Teaching experience at the college/university level, preferably with undergraduate students

The Department of Health Sciences is part of a vibrant Boston University academic and research community that includes 17 schools and colleges across the Charles River and Medical campuses, including Boston University's renowned School of Public Health as well as many other highly regarded medical and educational institutions in the Boston area that allow for collaborative and interdisciplinary activities. We invite you to join our interdisciplinary faculty and become involved with our network of collaborations within Boston University and the greater Boston community.

Review of applications will begin immediately and continue until the positions are filled. Please send applications (letter of intent including statement of research interests, curriculum vitae, and contact information for three references) to:
