Applications are invited for the position of Lecturer in the Department of Speech, Language, and Hearing Sciences at Boston University. Responsibilities will include teaching within the undergraduate and MS in Speech-Language Pathology program, clinical supervision, student mentoring, and coordination of clinical placements for MS-SLP students. This is a full-time, 9-month non-tenure track position at the Lecturer level with the potential for summer overbase salary. Start date for the position is the beginning of the 2020/2021 academic year.

Applicants must have ASHA certification (CCC-SLP) and be eligible for Massachusetts licensure; an earned doctorate degree is preferred. Experience in clinical supervision with a strong emphasis on evidence-based practice and a minimum of five years of direct clinical practice are required.

Boston University is an AAU institution with a long and distinguished tradition of dedication to inclusion and social justice. The College of Health and Rehabilitation Sciences: Sargent includes diversity as one of our strategic goals. In the department of Speech, Language, and Hearing Sciences, we are especially committed to increasing the participation of underrepresented groups at BU and throughout our professional organizations.

Applications should include a curriculum vita and a letter of interest explaining the applicant’s background and qualifications. Three current letters of recommendation should be sent under separate cover. In your application materials, we welcome a description of how you would contribute to the department’s commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion. The deadline for applications is January 1st, 2020. Please send materials to:
