Community Level Interventions to Address Intimate Partner Violence in Northern Tanzania

A Special Talk with Dr. Nafisa Halim

Boston University, School of Public Health

Nafisa Halim is a sociologist with research interests in social determinants of health and health-seeking behavior, gender-based violence, and monitoring and evaluation of health programs in low-income countries. Halim uses rigorous methods to develop and evaluate interventions to eliminate barriers to health. As a PI/Co-I, Halim served on research projects funded by the National Institutes of Health, the United States Agency for International Development, the Medical Research Council (South Africa), the World Health Organization and private foundations.
