ACOR-CAORC Fellowships

Information for Applicant

(Please read carefully)

I. Eligibility

ACOR-CAORC (Council of American Overseas Research Centers) applicants must be graduate students (MA or pre-doctoral) and United States citizens. Awards cannot be given to non-U.S. nationals or to U.S. resident aliens. A recent recipient of an ACOR-CAORC Fellowship is not eligible for two years.

Concurrent non-ACOR awards are permitted, but the ACOR Fellowship Committee must be informed in case adjustments have to be made.

II. International Travel

The fellowship provides travel funds for the awardee. ACOR-CAORC award recipients must adhere to the United States government's Fly America Act. Jordanian visa applications are available to U.S. citizens at Jordanian Consulates, on the web, or from the ACOR Boston office. You are strongly urged to use a passport that does not bear an Israeli stamp for entering Jordan and for travel to other countries in the region.

III. Local Travel

The fellowships are for research in Jordan. Brief visits to other countries in the area are possible and encouraged. Fellows, however, are obliged to spend at least 75% of their fellowship term in Jordan. ACOR fellows are not permitted to travel to countries under U.S. travel restrictions.

IV. Research and Study Itinerary

Applicants must schedule their research between September 1, 2010 and September 1, 2011 and their period of research must be continuous.

In the event of an emergency that necessitates a change in the study itinerary or travel plans presented in the original proposal, approval should be sought from the ACOR Fellowship Committee. Fellows are expected to conduct full-time research.

V. Fieldwork and Research Permits

If your research or fieldwork will require an official permit issued by the Jordanian Department of Antiquities, you must provide the Fellowship Committee with proof that the permit application process has been initiated.
If your research or fieldwork will involve interviews, questionnaires, or survey of living human subjects, you must provide the Fellowship Committee with proof that all necessary Institutional Review Board (IRB) inputs and approvals from your home institution have been or will be obtained. Applicants are also required to provide the name and contact information of the current director of IRB at the home institution.

VI. ACOR Facilities

The ACOR institute in Amman is a residential research facility housing up to 56 scholars at any given time. The ACOR library contains some 35,000 books and periodicals. While the library collection emphasizes archaeology, art history, anthropology, and ancient Near Eastern studies, it also contains many works on Middle Eastern religions, Biblical studies, political science, economics, history (medieval and modern), and related topics. The ACOR Library catalogue can be checked in advance through the ACOR website (www.acorjordan.org). Requests for new materials may also be submitted through the website. Fellows should note that other libraries are available in Jordan, including the University of Jordan library located a ten-minute walk from ACOR. ACOR also provides a lecture room, conservation laboratory, computer facilities and other technical equipment, kitchen facilities, and communal lounge areas.

VII. Statement of Non-political Activity

By accepting a ACOR fellowship, the recipient agrees not to engage in any activities, political or other, that may cause problems for the host country, the United States government, or ACOR.

VIII. Interim and Final Reports

Fellows whose award terms are for four months or more will submit an interim report (of approximately two to four pages) to the ACOR Director when the first half of their fellowship term has been completed. All fellows are required to submit a final report (specific directions will be provided) to ACOR at the end of their award term. Final reports should be submitted to the ACOR Director in Amman, and a copy to the ACOR office in Boston, within 60 days of completing the fellowship term. A sum of $250.00 is withheld from the awardee's stipend and will be remitted when the report is received. Fellows may be asked to give a public lecture or fellow’s talk (to be arranged by ACOR) during the award term.

IX. Allocation of Funds

Transportation funds will be available before departure. In Amman funds are disbursed on a monthly basis by the ACOR Director, in U.S. dollars or Jordanian dinars. An alternate schedule of disbursement is possible (if required for the research project) at the discretion of the ACOR Director.

X. Award Amount

The ACOR-CAORC Fellowships include the cost of an economy class round-trip ticket from your point of departure to your point of return. ACOR will pay the travel agent directly (if you are departing from the U.S. or Canada) for international travel and ensure that the requirements of the Fly America Act are fulfilled. The cost of this ticket will depend on individual circumstances.
The ACOR-CAORC Fellowship is for a maximum of $19,600 for six months. It includes:
(a) $3,000 for travel and travel related expenses. ACOR purchases the ticket according to the requirements of the Fly America Act; the remainder should be sufficient for Jordanian visa and exit fees, shipping and excess baggage expenses, local travel, and international health insurance;
(b) $1,100 per month for housing; this is a fixed fee allocated directly to ACOR (if a spouse accompanies the awardee, there is an additional charge of $500 per month to be paid by the fellow);
(c) $1,500 per month stipend paid to the awardee;
(d) $1,000 in field research funds, if eligible and the appended Field Research Grant Application is approved. The Research Grant Application must be submitted at the time of the CAORC Fellowship application.

All fellowship awardees must inform ACOR if they receive funds from any other source to support work on their project. Your ACOR award may be adjusted accordingly. If the duration of the fellowship term is altered, the amount of the award will also be adjusted.

XI. Expenditure Records
ACOR-CAORC fellows must present receipts for field research expenses (see IX.d above). Fellows are not required to account for their monthly stipend or allowance, but they may wish to keep records for tax purposes and future planning.

XII. Selection
Applications will be evaluated by the ACOR Fellowship Committee and a panel of reviewers experienced in the Middle East, and Jordan in particular, and representing a broad range of academic disciplines. Final selection is determined by the ACOR Fellowship Committee.

ACOR-CAORC applicants who have a field research aspect of their project may apply for additional research funds. Applicants with projects in any discipline may apply for additional research funds. (These supplementary funds are not available for ACOR-CAORC Post-Graduate or NEH Fellowships.) Your budget request may include only large expense items, such as necessary vehicle rental for a field project, substantial photography and drafting costs, major copying, rental of field equipment, hiring temporary field assistance, facilitator, or translator. Travel outside Jordan may be included only if it is within the Near East and is an integral and essential component of your research project. Minor cost of supplies, copying, taxis, and travel should be covered by the awardee’s stipend or monthly allowance. Do not include cost of accommodations at ACOR, international travel to and from Jordan, or personal expenses.

The amount of these grants will be limited to $1,000. Application for these supplemental funds must be made when you submit your CAORC Fellowship application. Supplemental research fund applications submitted after February 1st will not be considered.

The following local rates are meant to serve as guidelines to help you prepare your budget. They are current as of 2009 and should be in the range of 2010-2011 rates.
