COURSE CONTENT

This course provides undergraduates with a broad introduction to the diversity and development in Asia Pacific. The course is divided into three parts. Part I introduces historical and political legacies in Asia before WWII. It focuses on the rise and decline of a Sino-centric and a Japan-centric order in East Asia and discusses the impacts of these two historical periods on today’s domestic politics and international relations in the region. Part II focuses on political-economic developments in Pacific Asia after WWII. It first examines the economic miracles in Japan and the four “Asian tigers,” and then discusses democratization in these high-growing regions. Part II also presents the process and nature of economic reform in China and explains how China’s economic resurgence challenges the existing order in the Pacific region. Part III focuses on the 1997/8 Asian financial crisis and its impacts on individual countries in the region as well as transnational regional politics.

COURSE REQUIREMENTS

There will be an in-class midterm exam, one paper and a final exam in the regularly scheduled exam period. The midterm exam will be on March 4, Wednesday, in-class. The paper will be about 10 pages long (double-space) and will be due on April 27, Monday. Paper topics will be distributed and discussed in class. They are intended to give students an opportunity to think critically about an important topic covered in the course and to hone their analytical writing. The paper ought to be written independently. The final exam will be held on the time decided by the university.

NOTE: The paper must be submitted on time. “On time” means the start of class on the day the paper is due. Late papers will be downgraded.
