WHITE BOUND: NATIONALISTS, ANTIRACISTS, AND THE SHARED MEANINGS OF RACE

MATTHEW W. HUGHHEY is Associate Professor of Sociology and Affiliate Faculty in the Institute for African American Studies at the University of Connecticut. He received his Ph.D. from the University of Virginia in 2009 where he also served as a research fellow with the Carter G. Woodson Institute for African-American and African Studies. In broad strokes, Professor Hughey’s research examines the relationship between inter-subjectively shared social meanings and objective social relations. His specific research agenda is a threefold examination of (1) racial identity formation, (2) racialized organizations, and (3) the production, distribution, and consumption of mass media racial representations. The author of seven books (with presses such as The New Press, Temple, Stanford, and Oxford), he is an active member of the discipline and currently serves as a Founding Associate Editor of the American Sociological Association’s first journal dedicated to the study of race: Sociology of Race and Ethnicity.
