Walter Rodney Seminars ? Fall 2012

The Walter Rodney Seminar lecture series was inaugurated in the fall of 1977, at the initiative of two doctoral candidates in Boston University's political science department. It was named after Walter Rodney, the Guyanese scholar and political activist murdered in his native country in 1980, whose best remembered book, "How Europe Underdeveloped Africa" (1972), has long been considered a classic in African studies. Over the past 35 years, the Walter Rodney Seminar has brought more than five hundred guest speakers to BU's African Studies Center. The lecture series is interdisciplinary, and has included presentations by established and incipient scholars in all Africa-related disciplines, including history, anthropology, political science, economics, sociology, public health, literature, visual arts, musicology, religion, Islamic studies, international relations, and public diplomacy

The seminars are held every Monday from noon to 1:30 pm in the William O. Brown Seminar Room, Rm 505, of the African Studies Center, 232 Bay State Road. Feel free to bring a lunch.
