

About the Keynote Speaker and Faculty Commentators

Edward Ayers is President Emeritus of the University of Richmond, where he now serves as Tucker-Boatwright Professor of the Humanities. He has written and edited 10 books, including The Promise of the New South: Life After Reconstruction and In the Presence of Mine Enemies: Civil War in the Heart of America. He is also co-host of BackStory with the American History Guys, a nationally syndicated radio show and podcast.

Kathryn Cramer Brownell is Assistant Professor of History in the Department of History at Purdue University. Her recent book project, Showbiz Politics: Hollywood in American Political Life, explored the institutionalization of Hollywood in American politics from 1928-1980. She is currently working on a political history of cable television from the Nixon administration through the Clinton years.

Eric Jarvis is a Visiting Lecturer at Boston University. He is working on a book manuscript based on his doctoral dissertation, "'Metropolis of Discontent': Chicago and the Evolution of Modern Liberalism, 1890-1920."

Katherine Jewell is Assistant Professor of History at Fitchburg State University. Her current books project, Dollars for Dixie: Business and the Transformation of Southern Conservatism in the Twentieth Century, is forthcoming from Cambridge University Press.

Brendan McConville is Professor of History at Boston University. His research focuses on the intersection of politics and social developments in Early America. He is the author of These Daring Disturbers of the Public Peace, The King's Three Faces: The Rise and Fall of Royal America, 1688-1776, and The American Revolution, 1763-1789.

Sarah Phillips is Associate Professor of History at Boston University. She is the author of This Land, This Nation: Conservation, Rural America, and the New Deal. Her current book project, The Price of Plenty: From Farm to Food Politics in Postwar America, examines the domestic politics sustaining the massive farm surpluses of the post-World War II era that established the United States as the predominant and most problematic of the state actors in the international food regime.

Andrew Robichaud is Assistant Professor of History of Boston University. His current book project — tentatively titled The Animal City: Remaking Human and Animal Lives in Nineteenth-Century America — traces the evolving roles and significance of animals in urban environments and explores interconnected legal, political, cultural, ecological, and social changes.
