

Re-Mapping Pentecostal Mission: Data, Networks, and Hong Kong

Some of the people who attended the tent meetings of our South China District Council in Hongkong, South China

Doctoral Lunch Seminar

The story of pentecostal mission is usually one of sweeping, global expansion. On the ground, however, pentecostal mission was a complex, often fraught, interplay of local, regional, and transnational dynamics. Using spatial and network analysis tools, Alex Mayfield examines the pentecostal movement of Hong Kong prior to World War II to show how pentecostal mission developed over time in response to the ebbs and flows of the local and the global.
