

I am an Associate Professor of Music, Music Education at Boston University. I am active with various service commitments to Boston University at the university, college, school, and departmental levels. I am interested in expanding my university-wide service to Boston University. Notable service includes serving on the Faculty Council, a position I have held since 2023, and am hoping to serve for another two academic years, and serving as the Director of Graduate Studies in the School of Music in the College of Fine Arts. I am interested in chairing the Teaching and Learning Resources committee. I consider my experiences as a member of the music education faculty to be particularly well-suited for this committee and the subsequent needs of the university.

?

Sincerely,

Andrew

Andrew Goodrich, DMA
Associate Professor of Music, Music Education
Music Education Graduate Professional Development Program Coordinator
School of Music
Boston University
Boston, MA 02215