Just one of the many ways BU helps the district

Thinking big by supporting local

Boston University may be a large, global research university, but that doesn't stop us from thinking local. While BU Dining Services serves millions of meals each year, we collaborate with farms in Hadley under 100 miles from campus, including Czajkowski Farm, Plainville Farm, and Twin Oaks Farm. By sourcing fresh produce nearby, we support the local food system and economy while mitigating environmental impacts and contributing to the preservation of farmland. In other words, we have a big appetite for the small things.
