BOSTON UNIVERSITY'S DANCE PROGRAM AND DANCE THEATRE GROUP PRESENT

ChoreoLab: An Informal Presentation of Dance

(BOSTON) – Boston University's Department of Physical Education, Recreation and Dance in collaboration with Boston University's Dance Theatre Group is pleased to present ChoreoLab 2016, an informal showing of choreography dance created by and for the Boston University community. There will be one performance on Sunday, May 1st at 4:00 p.m. that is free of admission. This production showcases a wide variety of original works by student and faculty choreographers and will take place in Boston University's Dance Theatre.

ChoreoLab 2016 will include student and faculty choreography from classes taught by Jossie Coleman, Marci Diamond, Marin Orlosky-Randow, DeAnna Pellecchia, and Lynda Rieman. Music selections will vary across genres and artists.

The Boston University Dance Theater, located at 915 Commonwealth Avenue, is a 223-seat state-of-the-art studio/theatre space designed specifically for dance performances, classes, and special events.

Choreolab is presented in cooperation with the Department of Physical Education, Recreation and Dance (Timothy Moore, Executive Director, and Micki Taylor-Pinney, Director of Dance).
