

Global Development, Peace and Security Advancing Human Progress

Inaugural Graduate Research Conference in International Relations

FRIDAY & SATURDAY
FEBRUARY 27-28, 2015

SUBMIT PAPERS TO PSGSGRAD@BU.EDU

As one of the driving principles of International Relations, the advancement of human progress can take myriad forms. Encompassing everything from the economics of development, to theories of security and international negotiations, to the science of public health and environmental sustainability, by its very nature human advancement is a broad and interdisciplinary quest.

This conference seeks to put forth the most convincing and cutting edge research in support of this endeavor. We look forward to absorbing and critically discussing what each branch of International Relations has to offer towards the continuing progress and advancement of the human condition.