AIMS AND THEMES: History 305 and 306 investigate the history of ideas underlying religious, philosophical, scientific, artistic, political, social, and economic practice in the United States. Both courses emphasize major thinkers and intellectual movements in their historical contexts. Both also address two larger questions. One concerns the field of intellectual history: How does the study of reflective and expressive thought illuminate the larger culture of the United States? The other concerns the subject of the course: In light of American thinkers’ extensive intellectual imports, their nation’s uniquely diverse demographics, and its purportedly hyper-utilitarian ethos, how can we speak of an “American intellectual tradition”?

History 306 examines American thought from roughly the turn of the twentieth century to the present when intellectuals in the United States determinedly anointed themselves and their times as “modern.” But what was distinctively “modern” about them and what were the stakes in conceptualizing them that way?

To get at answers we’ll pay particular attention to four modern sets of ideas and the controversies they helped generate: philosophical pragmatism’s revolt against intellectual “formalism,” social science’s discovery of cultural relativism, modernist art’s lure of unreason and self-reflexivity, and political theorists’ debates over America’s role in the world. As thinkers in the United States often linked these ideas, rightly or wrongly, to progressive liberalism, challenges to that ideology after World War II over questions of “power,” intellectual authority, cultural fragmentation, and racial and gender identities created a crisis of legitimacy for modern thought. Whether succeeding conservative and postmodernist thinkers overcame or exacerbated this crisis remains to be seen. Finally, returning to the anxiety over “unbelief” initially sparking the modernist turn, we conclude by considering the search for meaning in recent postmodern reconfigurations of science, religion, popular culture, and global justice.

READING: The required texts are all primary works written by thinkers at the time. The versions that we’ll be using are contained in books that are available at the BU Barnes and Noble bookstore or can be purchased online from various booksellers.

“FILMS OF AMERICAN IDEAS”: Viewing the films listed on the syllabus is required. They can be obtained from providers such as You Tube and Netflix. One copy of each film will also be available for individual viewing for one week before it is discussed in class at the reserve desk of the Geddes Language Center at 685 Commonwealth Ave., 5th Floor.

DISCUSSIONS: In order to make lectures comprehensible and discussions fruitful, reading assignments and film screenings must be done before the date for the topic and reading indicated on the syllabus. Discussions will be emphasized on certain dates, but questions and comments are encouraged throughout the term.

Assignments

SHORT PAPERS: Each student will write two 4-5 page papers analyzing the ideas addressed in all or most of the required documents for a particular day. Remember that your object is not just to paraphrase the readings but to analyze them—i.e., pick out the main arguments or themes presented or inferred, evaluate how they are supported and developed, and estimate how they fit or not into topics or movements we have discussed in the course so far. If you choose a day when multiple documents are assigned, you should be sure to compare them in your analysis. The first paper can be on any required reading assignment through Mar. 2 and should be turned in no later than the beginning of class on the day the assignment is scheduled to be discussed. The second short paper can be on any assignment from Mar. 4 through Apr. 27 and will likewise be due in class on the day the document(s) are discussed.

TERM PAPER: This paper is an essay of 10 pages on a single book by an American thinker. It should address the question, “What marks this book as a product of its intellectual time?” You may choose any book by an American author listed in the “Chronologies” sections of AIT2 with four qualifications: 1.) The book must not include a selection from the required reading. (You may choose a different book by the author.) 2.) The first publication date of your book should be between about 1900 and 1985. 3.) Before selecting it, you should get my approval either in person or by email. 4.) If you want to write on a novel, you need to consult me about its suitability for the course.

In making a preliminary assessment of possible books, you might find it helpful to consult a dictionary of American thinkers and ideas, such as Richard Wightman Fox and James T. Kloppenberg’s Companion to American Thought (1995). The focus of your paper should not be on the author’s life but on his or her ideas. You should not try to fit your book into the history of particular social and political events of its era, although you may allude to them. Rather you should select a central intellectual problem, question, theme, or movement alive at the time and position your book in relation to it. To compare your author’s ideas on this question to similar or different ones articulated by intellectuals roughly writing around the same time, you should use evidence drawn from relevant documents in AIT2 or other assigned reading. Papers will be due in class Apr. 29.

CITATIONS: Citation form should be consistent and generally follow the Chicago Manual of Style. If you frequently cite the same text, you can place a shortened version of author and title in parentheses at the end of a quotation or sentence and before the period and create a bibliography of full citations at the end of the paper.

EXAMS: There will be a quiz and a final.

GRADE BREAKDOWN: 10% on the quiz, 30% on the two short papers, 30% on the term paper, and 30% on the final.

Regulations

ATTENDANCE AND PARTICIPATION: Attendance at all classes is required and unexplained absences will lower a student’s final grade. Participation in the form of questions and comments in class may raise it by as much as a half grade.

LATE WORK: Make-ups will not be given nor will late papers be accepted except in the case of an extraordinary emergency, such as a severe illness or the death of a parent, spouse, or partner. I need to be informed in advance unless the event’s suddenness makes that impossible. Generally, a makeup date will be scheduled within a week.

PLAGIARISM: Plagiarism is arguably the most serious ethical violation that a scholar or student can commit in his or her writing. Read the Academic Conduct Code to understand the college policy on plagiarism. All cases of its suspected perpetration, as well as all other acts of suspected academic misconduct, will be referred to the Dean’s Office. If found guilty, a student will receive the maximum punishment allowed at the university.

ETIQUETTE: To preserve a classroom atmosphere conducive to collective learning, turn off cell phones and use laptop computers only for taking notes on the classroom lecture and discussion and without excessively drawing visual attention away from them.

GRADUATE STUDENTS AND AUDITORS: HI 706 graduate students are required to do the recommended readings and to reference them where relevant in their papers and exams. In addition to the required exams and writing assignments, they will be asked to write a 10-page historiography paper due at the end of the semester. Auditors will not write papers or take exams but are expected to regularly attend, do the readings, and, if they wish, participate in discussions.
