Master of Management in Hospitality (MMH) Degree With a Concentration in Senior Living

Designed specifically for professionals with an interest in the ever-expanding field of Senior Living, the Boston University School of Hospitality Administration (SHA) master’s degree is now offered on weekends to accommodate the busy lives of working individuals.

Balanced Program

Earn your MMH, part-time, in two years. Executives will take two classes per semester and each course will be taught over two full weekends (Fridays- Sundays). Coursework and assignments, questions, activities will also be shared asynchronously to complement the on-campus weekend experience. This schedule is designed to minimize the impact on your work schedule.

Business Program, Hospitality Perspective, Senior Living Expertise

Continue to elevate your expertise in the business, operations and challenges of senior living, while strengthening core business acumen through SHA’s foundational courses in Leadership, Branding, Financial Management, Innovation & Disruption. Core courses are taught in the Fall term; Senior Living electives are offered in the Spring semesters, with optional electives in the BU School of Social Work, School of Public Health, or other electives in the School of Hospitality Administration.

Exceptional Networking Opportunities

SHA’s notable senior living faculty, student body, and the renowned guests representing the global discipline of senior living, enhance the networking experience. Connect with SHA alums around the world as well as with Senior Living executives on the SHA Advisory Board, and in the professional realm. The moment you start your journey as a BU Master’s student, you begin your lifelong access to the resources and benefits from Boston University.

Tuition Match

When senior living and other hospitality companies want to reward employees with opportunities, education tops the list. The BU School of Hospitality will match up to one-third of the total MMH tuition so a company can sponsor associates: to enhance skills to move up the management track, share best practices as well as learn from others.
