The Boston University Individual Disability Insurance Benefit (the “IDI Plan”) is a benefit plan that offers protection from a loss of earnings if you are unable to work due to an illness or injury. The IDI Plan is designed to supplement the coverage offered through the Boston University Group Long Term Disability (LTD) Plan. The IDI Plan is offered on a voluntary basis and paid by the employee.

The IDI Plan is fully insured. Benefits are provided under an individual disability income insurance policy issued by The Standard Insurance Company.

The benefits described in this Handbook are subject to the terms and conditions of the individual plan document or insurance policies. If there is a discrepancy between this description and the insurance policies, the terms of the insurance policies will govern.
Eligibility

To be eligible for the IDI Plan you must:

• Be enrolled in Boston University’s Group Long Term Disability (LTD) plan; and
• Have current Base Salary of $100,000 or more, OR current Base Salary plus Bonus and Over Base in the prior year totaling $100,000 or more.

Enrollment

Enrollment Periods will be conducted for newly eligible employees at a time determined by Boston University. You may enroll in the IDI Plan if you meet the eligibility requirements and the following criteria if you are a newly eligible employee during the enrollment period:

If you do not apply during the designated enrollment period and choose to enroll at a later date, you will be required to provide evidence of good health satisfactory to the insurance company.

When Your IDI Coverage Begins

The insurance applied for will take effect when premium payment is received by the insurance company, provided you qualify for the coverage under the terms and conditions of the offer.

Individual Disability Insurance Plan Highlights

The IDI Plan benefit is calculated based on 75% of your total insurable income (defined below) less any Group Long Term Disability benefit and other Individual Disability Insurance you may already have. The maximum monthly benefit payable is $14,500.

The IDI Plan benefit is offered on a voluntary basis and paid by the employee. The amount of such contributions is determined by the amount charged by the insurer under the applicable insurance policy.

Eligible employees who wish to participate must elect coverage and contribute to the cost of the benefit with after-tax payroll deductions.

Insurable Income Definition

The IDI Plan defines insurable income as current base salary plus any Bonus and Over Base earned in the prior calendar year.

If your insurable income decreases, your IDI benefit amount will not decrease as long as premiums continue to be paid.

Definition of Disability

Residual Disability Benefit (also known as a Partial Disability Benefit)
Residual disability/residually disabled means you are not totally disabled; and you are working in your regular occupation or any other occupation; and due to your injury or sickness, you have a loss of income and either a loss of duties or a loss of time of at least 20%; and you are receiving regular medical care from one or more physician(s) appropriate for your injury or sickness.

The monthly residual disability benefit will be a percentage of your total monthly benefit. The monthly residual disability benefit will be determined by your loss of income for the month you are residually disabled divided by your prior income multiplied by your total monthly benefit.

For example, if an individual has a Monthly Benefit Amount of $5,000, and that individual went on a residual (partial) disability and made half of what they were making previously (for example, pre-disability the individual was making $100,000 and during the partial disability was making $50,000), they will receive half of their monthly benefit.

When Your IDI Coverage Ends
Your coverage under the IDI Plan will end if any of the following occur:
- The premiums remain unpaid at the end of the 31-day grace period,
- The policy expiration date, if you are not actively employed full time and have extended coverage under the policy’s renewal option provision,
- The date you are no longer regulation for at least 30 hours per week,
- The date you recover from your disability covered by the policy’s renewal option provision if the policy was continued under that option,
- The date the policy terminates under the Suspension During Military Service provision,
- The date of your written request to terminate the Policy, or
- You die.

IDI Coverage Portability
The individual policy coverage ensuring the IDI Plan is fully portable and can be maintained with the same terms of coverage by paying premiums directly to the insurance company. At such time as your employment with Boston University ends, a letter explaining how you can maintain your individual policy coverage will be sent to your home address.

When Benefit Payments Begin
The benefit waiting period, sometimes called the elimination period, is the number of days you must be disabled before IDI Plan benefits become payable.

Benefits are payable after 180 days of disability. Subject to the terms of the Recurrent Disability provision, these days need not be consecutive; they can be accumulated during a disability to satisfy an elimination period. Benefits are not payable, nor do they accrue, during an elimination period.

Recurrent Disabilities
If after the end of a disability you become disabled again within twelve months due to the same or related causes, it will be considered to be a continuing disability in order to determine the elimination period and the maximum benefit period applied to it.

Concurrent Disabilities

Concurrent disability means a disability caused by more than one injury and/or sickness. Benefits for a concurrent disability will be paid as if there was only one injury and/or sickness. Benefits will not be paid for more than one disability benefit for the same period.

Waiver of Premium

After 90 days of disability resulting from injuries or sickness not excluded from coverage, the insurance company will:

- Refund any premiums for the policy that were due and paid while you were disabled; and
- Waive the payment of premiums that thereafter become due for as long as the disability continues, but not beyond the maximum benefit period.

Taxation of Benefits

Generally, disability payments are taxed as income only if the premiums are paid by your employer. Since you are paying the premiums for your IDI Plan coverage with after-tax earnings, any disability benefit payments that you receive under the IDI Plan will be tax-free.

For more specific information on the taxation of disability benefits, you can refer to IRS Publication 525—Taxable and Nontaxable Income, available at www.irs.gov.

How IDI Benefits Coordinate with Other Sources of Disability Income

The IDI benefits do not offset or reduce at time of claim for any other source of disability income benefits.

When Payment of IDI Benefits Ends

- The date you no longer meet the definition of disability,
- The date you die,
- After 2 years, if the disability is due to a Mental Disorder and/or Substance Abuse if Occupation Class 5P, 4P, 3P and 4S; or
- The end of the maximum benefit period (as shown in the following table).

Even if your employment with Boston University terminates, your IDI Plan benefits will continue according to the schedule above for as long as you meet the definition of disability.

Recovery Benefit

This feature provides a benefit after a period of disability if you fully recover, return to full-time work in your occupation but you continue to lose earned income due to your prior disability. This provision pays a benefit while you re-establish your earnings base. The amount you get is based on the percentage of earnings you lose.

Rehabilitation Program

This benefit can help you regain your self-sufficiency as soon as possible. While you are disabled and receiving benefits, you can receive help to return to work by participating in a voluntary rehabilitation program approved by the insurance company. Some or all expenses in connection with the rehabilitation program may be paid by the insurance company.

Exclusions

Benefits will not be paid for:

- Disability caused or contributed to by war, declared or undeclared, or any act or incident of war, or which resulted from military training, military action or military conflict while you are on active duty in the military service,
- The first 90 days of your disability due to pregnancy or childbirth, except for complications of pregnancy,
• Disability caused or contributed to by your committing or attempting to commit a felony, or your being engaged in an illegal occupation,
• Disability cause or contributed to by your actively participating in a violent disorder or riot. “Actively participating” does not include your being at the scene of a violent disorder or riot while performing your official duties,
• Disability while you are confined for any reason to a penal or correctional institution for a period of more than 7 days,
• Intentionally self-inflicted injury; or
• Any loss excluded by name or specific description.

Benefits will be paid for disabilities caused or contributed to by a pre-existing condition or by a medical or surgical treatment of a pre-existing condition only if, on the date you became disabled, the policy has been continuously in effect for 12 consecutive months.

Benefits will be limited to an aggregate total of 12 months of benefit for each period of disability while you are not residing in the United States or Canada. If you should return to reside in the United States or Canada, you may become eligible to resume receiving benefits if you satisfy all terms and conditions of the policy.

Your Rights Under ERISA
The Individual Disability Insurance Benefit Plan is subject to the provisions of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (ERISA).

ERISA provides the participants in these plans with certain rights and protections. The following statement is included here so that you will be aware of your rights under the law.

Under ERISA:
• You may examine, without charge, at Human Resources and at other specified locations, during normal business hours, all plan documents relating to the plans in which you participate. The documents that must be available for your review include insurance contracts, plan and trust documents, collective bargaining agreements, and all documents filed with the U.S. Department of Labor and available at the Public Disclosure Room of the Employee Benefits Security Administration, for example, detailed annual reports.

• If you wish, you may request your own copies of these plan documents by writing to Human Resources. Where permitted by law, you may have to pay a reasonable charge to cover the costs of copying.

• You will receive summaries of the plans’ annual financial reports each year, free of charge. The administrator for the plans is required by law to furnish each participant with a copy of these summary annual reports.

Plan Fiduciaries
Besides giving you certain rights as a participant, ERISA places certain duties upon the people who are responsible for the management of the above-mentioned plans. These people are called “fiduciaries” under the law, and they have the duty to act prudently and in your best interests.

Under ERISA, no one may fire you or discriminate against you to prevent you from obtaining a plan benefit or exercising your rights under ERISA.

Enforcing Your Rights
If your claim for a benefit is denied, in whole or in part, you must receive a written explanation of the reason for the denial. You have a right to obtain copies, without charge, of documents relating to the decision, and to appeal any denial all within certain time schedules.

Under ERISA, there are steps you can take to enforce your rights. For instance, if you request materials from the plan and do not receive them within 30 days, you may file suit in a federal court. In such case, the court may require the Plan Administrator to provide the materials and pay you up to $110 for each day’s delay until you receive the materials, unless the materials were not sent for reasons beyond the administrator’s control. If you have a claim for benefits that is denied or ignored, in whole or in part, you may file suit in a state or federal court. In addition, if you disagree with a plan’s decision or lack thereof concerning the qualified status of a domestic relations order or medical child support order, you may file suit in federal court. If it should happen that plan fiduciaries misuse plan money, or if you are discriminated against for asserting your rights, you may seek assistance from the U.S. Department of Labor or file suit in a federal court.

In a lawsuit, the court normally decides who pays the court costs and legal fees. If you are successful, the other party might have to pay. But, if you lose, the court might order you to pay these costs and fees, especially if the court finds your claim to be frivolous.

Assistance with Questions

If you have any questions about this statement of your rights under ERISA, contact Human Resources. If you have any questions about this statement or about your rights under ERISA, or if you need assistance in obtaining documents from the Plan Administrator, you should visit the U.S. Department of Labor’s Employee Benefits Security Administration (EBSA) website at www.dol.gov/ebsa or call their toll-free number at 1-866-444-3272. You may also obtain certain publications about your rights and responsibilities under ERISA by calling the publications hotline of the Employee Benefits Security Administration.
