QUICK HITS

Why the cannabis industry?

Cannabis is one of the fastest growing industries in the US and is expanding all around the world. It's rare for an industry to have established customers even in markets that aren't yet developed. Beyond the incredible financial opportunity though, there are millions of patients that need better access to their medicine and many people in jail for growing plants who don't deserve to be there. For us, the bottom line is: people are consuming this herbal medicine everywhere, why not make it safe, regulated, and taxed. States like Colorado and Oregon are showing the tremendous benefits a sustainable market framework can provide.

What is an ancillary company?

Ancillary companies are those that support the cannabis industry but do not come directly in contact with the plant. They include things like software, services, accessories, agricultural products, etc.

Examples via GLP companies and our portfolio companies:

- Natural Order Supply (cultivation supply distribution)
- Dip Devices (vaporizer hardware)
- Flowhub (retail software)
- Gorilla Boost (grow medium)
- The Arcview Group (investor network)

Can the company already be active?

Yes! The more mature the company is, the better prepared you will be. The company does not need to be started specifically for this competition.

Does the business need to be state specific?

No. In fact, most ancillary companies are not state-specific. Some that are include those whose particular offerings cater to specific state regulations. This is an advantage for investors. There are also laws in many states that preclude out of state investors to participate in cannabis touching companies due to interstate and federal regulations.

What's going on in Massachusetts

"Important changes have been made to reform the Massachusetts cannabis program that previously made it difficult for small businesses to compete with large companies and their deep pockets. Gov. Charlie Baker signed a bill in August 2022 that gives the Massachusetts Cannabis Control Commission authority to reject or approve local impact fees, which have been a source of corruption and extortion for years.

The new law also lays a path for consumption lounges in Massachusetts and creates a Social Equity Trust Fund that will devote more state money to grants and loans for cannabis entrepreneurs who have been harmed by the war on drugs." -MJ Biz

QUICK HITS (CONTINUED)

What we don't want to see (not prohibited but suggested against)

- Non-innovative vaporizers
- "Band-aids" for problems that will eventually go away with the normalization of cannabis (like banking solutions)
- Combo products ("a water pipe with an attached grinder" for instance)
- Anything that touches the cannabis plant or could be construed as doing so
- Ideas that exist and are easily found with a little research--before choosing a route to take, make sure your concept doesn't exist, and if something similar does, be prepared to explain what significantly differentiates your offering.

Branding - what not to do

Stay away from over-use of green and cannabis leaves, as they're all over the industry (there are of course exceptions when done well). Additionally, it's important to help move this industry and its perception forward, so stay away from stereotypical imagery and "stoner" culture, and be sure to avoid sexism and sexualized branding.

WHAT MAKES A COMPANY INVESTABLE IN THIS INDUSTRY

Company Concept

- Unique position within the market
- Traction (existing and/or plan to acquire)
- Definition and size of potential user base
- Marketing & Advertising plan
- Overall branding and brand management strategy

Financial Opportunity for Investors

- Focus on assumptions made more than specific values
- Financial projections for operations (revenue, direct costs, overhead, net margins etc.)
- Valuation and calculation to derive it
- Funding required & specific use of funds
- Potential for exit / returns to investors

Non-Financial Investability

- Legal viability
- Team
- Advisors
- Intellectual property plan

Scalability

- Barrier to entry created
- Biggest advantage you have other than first mover
- Size of addressable market & ability to penetrate
- Education needed to create demand
- Additional funding needed / cash flow
- Competitors (existing & future)

SOCIAL COMPONENT

Policy reform and social responsibility are an important aspect of the cannabis industry. It's imperative for new companies to have a plan for how they will integrate supporting the cause into their business models. All entries require a social component.

Be creative and have fun with this. It could be as simple as a portion of sales going to a specific organization all the way to directly helping specific individuals with certain sales. This component can go to education or non-profit organizations; additional ideas include enabling ease of access, proceeds going to criminal justice reform, etc.

Potential organizations to support:

- Students for Sensible Drug Policy (SSDP)
- Marijuana Policy Project (MPP)
- Drug Policy Alliance (DPA)
- Minority Cannabis Business Association (MCBA)
- National Cannabis Industry Association (NCIA)
- Weed for Warriors (WFW)
- Massachusetts Recreational Consumer Council (MRCC)
