

maya santow

A creative Keystone project that represents music listeners as artists through a collection of photo portraits and audio narratives

Interviews focus on the songs and albums that are most meaningful to three music listeners and explore:

How does music connect us?

How does music help us form our identities?

Can the experience of listening to music be its own form of art?

The Playlist and the Personal

Music, Selfhood, and Connection

04:26

- 20:25

