OVERVIEW

INSIGHTS

Josh is a corporate attorney who advises clients in transactions that are critical to the success of their businesses, as well as in general corporate matters that arise in the operations of their businesses. He has significant experience working with clients in the life sciences industry (biotechnology, diagnostics, and devices) and the technology industry, including digital health, software, technology-enabled services, and consumer products.

Josh represents companies ranging from start-ups to more established enterprises in a variety of corporate transactions. His practice includes a particular focus on entrepreneurial ventures and emerging companies. Josh has advised many founders and growing businesses from the earliest stages, prior to company formation, through successful exit events.

He regularly counsels clients on incorporation issues; advises companies in seed-stage, angel, venture capital, strategic, and other financings; and provides representation in mergers and acquisitions and initial public offerings.

In addition, Josh maintains an active pro bono practice, and he is a lecturer at the Boston University School of Law.

Josh is frequently invited to speak on topics related to entrepreneurship, financing, exit strategies, and best practices for corporations, and he regularly publishes his insights and tips in leading law, business, and technology journals and blogs.
