I. Introduction – “What’s Inside?”

This packet contains registration deadlines, credit requirements, WebReg instructions and tips for using the system, a guide to useful information on the web, and advice on choosing your courses from Associate Dean Anna di Robilant. Please be sure to read all of the information in this packet carefully before you choose your classes. You may contact the Law School Registrar’s Office at (617) 353-3115 or by e-mail to lawreg@bu.edu with any questions.

The information in this packet and in the PDF descriptions and schedules was correct as of the date it was issued. Inevitably, changes occur and courses are added or must be dropped after these materials are produced. The school regrets any inconvenience this may cause, and we will endeavor to minimize disruption. Students should be certain to pay attention to any announcements the Registrar’s Office makes regarding updates to these materials. These updates will be available on the School of Law web pages.

II. University Requirements for Registration

Boston University policy requires all students studying on Massachusetts campuses to provide an emergency alert phone number and update their local address each semester. In addition, the Commonwealth of Massachusetts requires all full-time and many part-time university students to provide proof of having completed a series of immunizations. For the 2022-2023 academic year, this will include proof of a COVID-19 vaccine and booster. Massachusetts also requires students from out-of-state to complete an acknowledgement of the MA Motor Vehicle Policy. For more details visit the University Registrar’s website. Finally, you must complete University-wide Training on Sexual Misconduct Prevention. For information about the training, visit the Wellness & Prevention Services website. Check the Student Link to ensure you have met these requirements and that your student account is settled. Students not in compliance will be unable to register.

III. Course Selection and the Lottery

Beginning Wednesday, April 27 continuing law students will have access to the Web Registration (WebReg) options on the Student Link. This system provides a convenient way to access and change course information by simply logging on to the Student Link using your BU Login Name and password. Course Selection is a pre-registration process that allows you to select and prioritize your course preferences for the course registration lottery – it does not enroll you in classes. Your deadline to select and rank your courses is Monday, June 6. There is no advantage to registering early (course selection is not first come, first served), however you should not wait until the last minute to make your selections. Rising 2Ls – After meeting with your faculty, don’t forget to email the Registrar’s Office (lawreg@bu.edu), cc’ing your faculty advisor, for your advising code. You will not be able to access the registration tools without your code.

WebReg will close promptly at 11:59 pm on June 6. The lottery is run at the end of the course selection period and is maintained so that third-year students have preference for courses and seminars. Over the summer, you will receive notification of the courses for which you are officially registered.

IV. Credit Requirements

Course selections must meet School of Law degree program requirements and should take into account the Bar admission requirements of any state in which you might seek to practice. Students are reminded that you may not exceed 17 credits of “non-grade point average” coursework without Academic Standards Committee approval. You are responsible for ensuring that you satisfy the degree requirements and the following credit hour requirements each year.

	Minimum	Maximum
Semester	12 credits	17 credits
Academic Year	26 credits
Graduation	85 credits

V. Course Selection Procedures and Instructions

General Procedures:

- ▣ You should select courses for both fall and spring semesters. Failure to register for spring will result in the assessment of late fees.
- ▣ You may change your selections as many times as you want prior to the June 6 deadline.
- ▣ You must assign a priority ranking to each selection.
- ▣ You may not select more than one section of a course in a semester.
- ▣ There can be no time overlap of courses in a student's final class schedule.
- ▣ Dual Degree Students may not use WebReg to register for non-law courses. Please check with the Registrar's Office of your secondary program regarding deadlines and procedures for that school's registration.
- ▣ Students interested in a Supervised Research and Writing Project (Independent Study) must register for the project through the Law Registrar's Office.
- ▣ Students accepted into a clinical program are advised to not list the program course components with high priority numbers. However, if you are required to take Evidence or Criminal Procedure concurrently you should assign a high priority to those courses. Students must be sure to select all components of their clinical program. Admission to a clinic does not guarantee space in your preferred section.
- ▣ Students accepted into an Externship are advised to not list the program components with high priority numbers. Register for both the fieldwork and corresponding seminar course or academic component. Any adjustments to the fieldwork credits can be made as necessary during add/drop.
- ▣ Remember, the courses you select are run through the lottery process after Monday, June 6 and that a confirmation of which courses you are officially registered for will be mailed to you in early July. You may also confirm your official registration through the Student Link after June 20. (The fall course lottery and spring course lottery will be run separately.)

WebReg Instructions:

- ▣ Click on "Pre-Reg Worksheet". You will be able to add classes to both your Fall and Spring Worksheets – both Worksheets appear under the "Fall 2022" option. Do not confuse "Plan" with the Pre-Reg Worksheet.

VI. Lottery Results and Wait Lists

Overview: You select and rank your course preferences for the fall and spring semesters. At the conclusion of the course selection period, the lottery process is run to enroll students in courses giving third-year students priority. The lottery for fall and spring are run separately. Students will be able to view their preliminary schedules on the Student Link no later than June 20. We will email course confirmations and any updated course information to registered students in late June. All students will have an opportunity to make changes to their schedule during the add/drop period. Detailed information regarding add/drop procedures is included below.

Closed courses: Every effort will be made to honor indicated course preferences. In the event a student cannot be admitted to all the courses initially elected, admission to closed courses will be determined first by preference and then, if necessary, by lot. (See information below regarding wait lists.)

Closed research seminars: Enrollment priority for closed research seminars will be determined by the rule set above concerning closed courses unless circumstances require the use of a different rule to assure adequate opportunities for satisfying the upperclass writing requirement. (See information below regarding wait lists.)

Undersubscribed courses: If a course or seminar is so under-subscribed as to make it nonviable, the course or seminar may be withdrawn. Notice will be given to students who elected such a course or seminar through notices posted on the website and via e-mail. Affected students will be given an opportunity to select an alternate course.

Wait List Procedures

The Registrar's Office will maintain wait lists for closed courses and seminars. The Registrar will assign open places in these courses and seminars by lot, with preference to third year students. Within these constraints, students closed out of oversubscribed courses during the course selection process will be given first preference on the wait lists for those courses during the add/drop period. During the summer, open spaces in fall courses may be allotted to waitlisted students.

Adding Your Name to a Wait List: If you have been closed out of a class, you are not automatically placed on a wait list! You must place your name on a wait list for the course or seminar in which you would like to enroll. You may add your name to a wait list through the online form (<http://www.bu.edu/law/current-students/jd-student-resources/forms/wait-list-form-for-closed-courses/>) after the 2022-2023 closed courses are updated. The Academic Regulations require that a student attend the first meeting of a seminar or a Contract Drafting, Library Research, Transaction Simulation, or Trial Advocacy section to be considered for enrollment. Be advised that we strongly recommend you attend the first meeting of any closed class if you are on the wait list – many professors will not advise the Registrar to open enrollment to wait listed students beyond the first class meeting.

Class Attendance and Wait Lists: If space does not become available prior to the start for the semester, it is important to attend the first class meeting in order to remain eligible to add the class should a space become available. The Registrar will review the wait lists and attendance sheets after classes begin to determine if any students can be admitted to a closed class from the wait list. We will post lists of students admitted from wait lists online and at the Registrar's Office on the fifth floor.

How to Register for Wait Listed Courses and Seminars: Students who are admitted from a wait list after the first class meeting must complete an add form within 48 hours of that list being posted -- you will not be able to add a closed course through WebReg. Add/drop forms may be completed in person or online.

Note: Students who are enrolled in any seminar, Contract Drafting, Library Research, Transaction Simulation, or Trial Advocacy are reminded that you must attend the first class meeting or you will be administratively dropped from the class.

VII. Adding and Dropping Courses

Add/Drop Dates:

	Fall 2022
3Ls only	7/6/22– 7/19/22
2Ls only	7/20/22 – 8/2/22
All JD students	8/3/22 – 9/18/22

* Students are reminded that during the Fall Add/Drop period, you may also make adjustments to your spring semester schedule. The start date for the early spring add/drop period will be posted to the web during the fall semester.

Note: Clinical Programs have their own add/drop periods and registration requirements. Students should check with the office of the relevant clinical program for specific add/drop and registration procedures.

Late drops and late adds: Adding or dropping fall courses after the dates designated above will be permitted ONLY with the approval of the Academic Standards Committee, and only upon showing a compelling situation.

Minimum course requirements: A course may not be dropped if the program change will result in a program of fewer than 12 credit hours per semester, or less than 26 credit hours per year unless such a program has been given advanced approval by the Academic Standards Committee.

X. A Message from the Associate Dean about the Curriculum and Choosing Courses

BU Law provides over 200 different course options for students in their 2L and 3L years: an exciting opportunity for you to make your registration your own. The Course Selection Guide is designed to help you plan your program of study at the School of Law in your second and third years. The Guide includes schedules and registration instructions. The course and seminar descriptions are provided in a separate document and on the web site. We are likely to add a few offerings as we confirm the schedules of part-time faculty members. While you should consider these publications substantially complete, it's important that you periodically check the web site and any e-mails you receive from the Registrar's or Student Affairs Offices for updates. Here, Associate Dean Muir and I would like to explain a bit about the courses you are required to take and offer some suggestions about how to approach the process of choosing courses. This is an important process that will impact your experience at BU Law and beyond.

In addition to the advice contained in this memo, which is general, the faculty have collaborated on a series of memos that offer detailed course selection guidance in a number of areas of law. We have memos on business law, constitutional law, criminal law, health law, intellectual property, and international law. Those memos can be found, along with a checklist of academic requirements, bar admission requirements, and other useful information, here: <http://www.bu.edu/law/current-students/jd-student-resources/academic-advising/>.

Graduation Requirements

There are four graduation requirements you must fulfill during your second and third years.

- 1) You must satisfy the Professional Responsibility requirement. A list of the courses that fulfill this requirement is included in the Course Selection Guide. Per ABA requirements, students must fulfill this course using a different class than those used for the experiential education and upper-class writing requirements, as outlined below. If you are entering your third year, be sure to have a clear plan to satisfy this requirement.
- 2) You must satisfy the upper-class writing requirement, which is described in detail in the Student Handbook and in the Academic Regulations. By the beginning of your fourth semester of law school, you must have a clear plan to satisfy this requirement, and ideally the plan should be carried out to completion before starting your last semester of law school. Students must complete their upper-class writing requirement before their final semester, or if not completed prior to their last term, must provide a first-draft to their faculty advisor no later than the last class-day of the fourth week of that final semester. Failure to meet the first-draft deadline may prevent a student's timely graduation and participation in Commencement.

Please note that you must submit the "Intention to Complete the Upper Class Writing Requirement" form to the Registrar's Office no later than the last day of the add/drop period of the semester in which you intend to satisfy the requirement. Failure to submit this form by the last day of the add/drop period of your fifth semester (fall of the 3L year) will result in notification to the Associate Dean of Student Affairs, and may require submission of a petition to the Academic Standards Committee to add this requirement to your registration. And, as noted above, students must fulfill this requirement in a course that is unique from those used to fulfill the experiential education and professional responsibility graduation requirements.

3) You must take six credits of experiential education. The menu of eligible courses, not all of which are offered every year, is contained in the Course Selection Guide. Completion of the Lawyering Lab during your first year at BU Law satisfies one experiential education credit. This requirement provides a great opportunity for you to apply your substantive knowledge in simulation courses, externships, clinics and other practice-oriented experiences. As noted above, a course used to satisfy the upper-class writing requirement or the professional responsibility degree requirements cannot be applied to the experiential education requirement. This is especially significant for students who seek to apply a clinic seminar to their professional responsibility requirement; for these students, only the fieldwork component of the clinic will count toward the experiential education requirement (students in a year long clinic – the spring seminar will count towards the experiential requirement).

4) Students must complete the online, self-paced Business Fundamentals program or opt-out of the requirement by attaining a score of 84% or better on the pre-course exam. You must enroll in the program as a course during the summer, fall, or spring term. Mastery of the material covered in Business Fundamentals will be very useful to you as you tackle upper level courses such as Corporations. Thus, we strongly encourage students to complete this program the summer following the 1L year.

NOTE: In addition, to comply with ABA, New York, and some other state bar requirements, you must complete 64 in-class, faculty-directed credits while at BU Law. The following do not count toward the 64 credit minimum: non-graded credits for journal work; moot court direction; courses taken outside of the law school; externship program fieldwork; independent studies; and semesters in practice.

Recommended Course Selections

Students sometimes ask the administration and faculty to recommend other “core” courses that virtually all students should take, even though they are not formally required. While I offer a few recommendations below, you should keep in mind that there’s no single solution (otherwise we would have more requirements!). Indeed, if you speak to faculty, students, and attorneys, you will hear a wide range of views about what courses are essential to the law school experience. A program of courses should reflect a balance between your interests in particular courses or professors, the areas where you expect to practice and the skills you will need, and topics that are foundational or the subject of the bar examination. You should therefore consult your faculty Connections adviser, other faculty members, attorneys, and your peers to obtain a range of perspectives that can inform your decisions.

The next few pages nevertheless contain some general advice about course selection. Afterwards you will find additional advice from the Career Development Office.

Highly Recommended Courses

These courses all involve issues and terminology that are useful to lawyers in almost every practice area. Not every student needs to take them all, but these courses will contribute to the breadth of your legal education and may lead you to pursue areas of law that are more interesting than you had expected. Complete ignorance of any of them can become a source of professional discomfort to you later on. Even if you have no intention of ever being a tax lawyer, for example, a basic knowledge of that area will at least allow you to participate in conversations about the tax implications of decisions that your clients may face. Being the only one in the room who does not know what “basis” refers to (or what “hearsay” means) is an awkward prospect that you should be eager to avoid.

Course	Bar Course	Prerequisite or Corequisite to the following courses or programs	Other Considerations
Administrative Law	No	Health Law Concentration; Transactional Law Concentration	Ten times as many rules (which have the force of law) are passed by administrative agencies each year as there are laws passed by legislatures each year. These agencies are vitally important in business (SEC, FTC, FDIC, etc.), Health Law (FDA), Consumer Law, etc. It is not possible to understand the US legal system without understanding Administrative Law.
Corporations	Yes	Corporate Finance; Mergers & Acquisitions; Securities Regulation; Alternative Business Entities; Corporate Governance; Deals; Other advanced business law courses	One of the primary institutions that organize society. One cannot practice law without running into corporations.
Federal Income Tax	No	Corporate Tax; Taxation of Unincorporated Entities;	Tax affects nearly all aspects of law. It is especially important in the areas of business law and family law. Many business deals

		Other advanced tax courses	cannot be understood without understanding the tax implications. One does not necessarily need to be a tax expert, but one needs to know how to talk to tax experts.
Evidence	Yes	Civil Litigation Clinic Criminal Clinic Int'l Human Rights Clinic Trial Advocacy	Regardless of your field of practice, it is very helpful, informationally, to have full appreciation of the rules of evidence.

You are also strongly encouraged to take one of our many courses that address how race, as well as other identities and social hierarchies, shape and, in turn, are reinforced by law. These courses give you the tools to be an effective and culturally competent legal professional, with a full and sophisticated understanding of how law and policy operate.

Other Foundational Doctrinal Courses

There are many other courses and seminars that will enrich your experience here. If you do not have a strong view about what practice area you hope to pursue, consider taking some of the foundational courses from this list:

Federal Courts	Criminal Procedure	Employment Law
Environmental Law	Family Law	Information Privacy Law
Health Law	Intellectual Property	International Law
Secured Transactions	Trusts, Wills & Estates

This list of courses offers a broad foundation in the largest fields of practice. They are all offered every year, as are most of our large survey courses. Many courses with smaller enrollments are offered every other year, depending on staffing considerations. Keep this in mind in planning your course selections over a two-year cycle.

Also, keep in mind that after the first year you may take up to eight total credits of work on an ungraded basis. You either receive credit (CR), or honors (H), or if you do not receive credit for a class (NC), it will be removed from your transcript. Not every course can be taken on these terms, but many can. Our hope is that this rule will encourage you to take coursework that will be valuable to your professional development but that you might have avoided if the result would be a grade on your transcript.

Fields with Formal Concentrations

We offer concentrations in seven areas:

1. Health Law
2. Intellectual Property & Information Law
3. International Law (includes commercial law as well as public international law)

4. Litigation and Dispute Resolution
5. Public Interest
6. Risk Management & Compliance
7. Transactional Practice

Some students complete the requirements of one of these concentrations; others don't. In either case, though, you may find that the lists of courses in the concentrations (available on the law school website) help you to think about your course selection choices.

Note that the International, Public Interest, and Litigation concentrations are quite broad. Students interested in these fields may want to seek further advice from the concentration advisor or concentration faculty on how to tailor course choices to a more narrow focus within the list.

Experiential Education Opportunities

The law school offers a wealth of experiential education opportunities – courses and programs in which you learn by doing, and gain practical skills that allow you to hit the ground running when you enter practice. In deciding which experiential opportunities to take during your second and third year, you should consider your professional goals, your substantive interests, and the need to balance and integrate experiential learning with traditional, doctrinal coursework. Our experiential learning opportunities are fully described on our website, but include:

- “Live client” clinics: civil, criminal, legislative, and transactional clinical opportunities lasting a semester or year involving a broad array of subject matters.
- The Transactional Law Program: a largely simulation-based approach to transactional skills training.
- Externships: a 12 to 20 hour per week experience working in judicial, government, public interest, in-house or private law firm pro bono service.
- Semester-in-Practice: a full-time experience working in government or other sectors inside or outside of Boston.
- Courses or seminars, often taught by part-time faculty who are skilled practitioners, that are predominantly experiential. These offerings are identified on a list of courses and seminars meeting the experiential learning requirement, which appears at the end of this memo.

NOTE: Anyone seeking admission to practice in New York must demonstrate that they have performed 50 hours of pro bono service. Work done in our civil, criminal, and legislative clinical programs qualifies, as does participation in certain externships. Students planning to take the NY Bar should verify whether any particular experience would qualify by reviewing the rules at <http://www.nycourts.gov/attorneys/probono/FAQsBarAdmission.pdf>

Seminars

In a typical year, you can choose from among more than 50 seminars at the law school taught by both full-time and part-time faculty on an extremely broad range of subjects, ranging from critical race theory to private equity and venture capital. Depending on the seminar, participation may provide you with an opportunity to hone your writing skills, to gain practice skills, or to delve into an area of interest in greater depth than one would in a traditional course.

By all means, take a seminar or two while you are at BU Law, but don't overdo it. Some employers will look askance at a transcript with more than a handful of seminars.

Courses in the BU Law Graduate Programs or Elsewhere at BU

You may wish to take courses not listed in the course selection booklet. These include graduate courses in other departments of the University, subject to the limits in the Academic Regulations, but also courses offered by our graduate programs in Taxation and Banking and Financial Law. Most J.D. students are well qualified to take most of these courses, and those programs are eager to have you in their classes. Registration for classes in the graduate programs is not done by the Registrar's Office but by the staff of those programs themselves. See the appropriate sections of this Guide for more details. Students with a clear career path in banking or tax law may wish to consider enrolling in BU Law's six or seven semester combined JD/LLM programs in these subjects.

Study Abroad Programs

BU Law offers several study abroad programs. In most of these programs, students spend a semester at a foreign school. Some programs have a language requirement, though most offer classes taught in English. Students earn 12 credits, which meets our minimum semester credit requirements. We also offer five year-long, dual-degree study abroad programs, which you can learn more about from the Office of Graduate and International Programs.

Depending on your professional interests, a study abroad program can provide a strong complement to your course of study at the law school. As with all of your course selection decisions, however, you should ensure that the program fits into your area of substantive interest and leaves you room to take other courses that will prepare you for practice.

Balance, Balance, Balance

One of the great strengths of BU Law is the breadth and flexibility of our curriculum, but students must take care in making their selections from this expansive menu. It is fine to specialize in a particular practice area, but balance this with a number of foundational courses in other areas. You never know where your career path will take you. Take interesting seminars and participate in experiential learning opportunities, but not to the exclusion of traditional doctrinal courses. Few students should devote more than half of their upper level credits to seminars, experiential learning, and courses from outside of the JD curriculum. We want you to leave BU Law as a well-rounded and capable practitioner with strong skills and robust substantive legal knowledge.

XIII. Registering for Non-Law Classes

Upper-class students may take classes at other colleges within the University. The registration procedure varies – WebReg is not always available – so students are advised to review the information below and to consult the Registrar's Office with any questions.

Registration is a two-step process for students who want law credit for a graduate-level course (level 500 or greater). Once you have registered for a graduate course, you must complete an add/drop form in the Registrar's Office in order to add the class to your law transcript. Graduate courses and the grade will appear on your transcript, however the grade is not factored into your law g.p.a. Tuition charges are based on the credits awarded at the University level. Students who exceed 18 credits in a semester will be responsible for the additional tuition charges.

Please note that non-law classes do not count toward the 64 credit in-class work at BU Law.
