

Jane Goldstein Bio

Jane Goldstein is a partner at Ropes & Gray LLP and co-head of the firm's mergers & acquisitions group for North America maintaining offices in both New York and Boston. She has spent her full career at the prestigious firm since graduating magna cum laude from Boston University School of Law in 1989.

Widely regarded as a leader in her field, Jane has received numerous accolades, including The American Lawyer's "Dealmaker of the Year" and recognitions from U.S. News, IFLR1000 and The Deal, among others. She advises a wide range of public and private companies with respect to mergers and acquisitions, corporate governance, securities regulation, and general legal matters, as well as investment banking firms serving in financial advisory roles.

Consistently a leader, Jane has been breaking barriers since she was the Editor-in-Chief of the Annual Review of Banking Law at BU School of Law. Jane also graduated from Boston University in 1982 magna cum laude in French Language and Literature.

Jane is an avid skier and all-around lover of the outdoors. She and her husband Bruce have an adult daughter, Brett, who works and lives in New York. They currently reside on the beach in Swampscott, Mass. with their three dogs.
