The collection of eight boxes includes seventeen folders of correspondence from actors, playwrights, directors and others with whom Elliot Norton was associated in his 48 years as drama critic for a Boston newspaper and interviewer for the weekly radio and television program "Elliot Norton Reviews" from 1958-1982. Some carbon copies for Mr. Norton's letters are also present.

He was affiliated with the major American theater organizations and drama critic groups, as founding member, president or committee member of most at one time or other. Fourteen folders are devoted to correspondence, programs and publicity for his numerous awards and honors.

Among other materials in the collection are typescripts of his lectures, transcripts and other documents related to his television program, and biographical pieces written during his career and on his retirement in 1982.
